Ms. Hunt

Every so often we will encounter a couple of dedicated individuals who want only the best for us. They push us to our limits and make us strive to be what we were meant to be — number 1.

They've taken on the responsibilities of teaching physical education classes as well as coaching many of our sports teams. We cannot begin to appreciate all the time, effort, and zeal they have unselfishly devoted to our athletics program . . .

Coach Hunt proudly observes one of her teams.

Ms. Hunt is always willing to help her players.

Mr. Johnson

Being in charge of the physical education department and having to handle all the impromptu emergencies that needed tending to, they still managed to retain their sanity and patience.

You have enriched our lives and helped us grow to what we are and have influenced what we will become. Your contributions are countless and we are greatful for all you've done for us.

With great appreciation, we proudly dedicate the 1987 Paragon to Coach Dave Johnson and Coach Sue Hunt. Here's to you both!

Along with Coach Marcos, Mr. Johnson discusses his team's potential.

What can we say that hasn't already been said?

We have done our best to capture every scruple from the 1987 school year between the covers of this book. We had no idea how much time, devotion, and most of all- courage this emense project would take. But it wasn't all bad- in fact it was actually fun- yeah that's it! Fun!

If, 20 years from now, you can open this book and still be able to hear the roar of the crowd on homecoming day, the laughter of your friends in the halls, and maybe even feel the piercing stare of your English teacher on finals day, then we have succeeded in our task.

We hope you, the students, enjoy this book as much as we enjoyed making it for you. So at the end of another year- HERE'S TO YOU '87 because you sure deserve it.

"You have deserved high commendation, true applause and love."

— Shakespeare
"As You Like It", Act I

You are an individual, an entity complete within yourself, you are a marvel and a miracle, a human being. Ideas and thoughts are the basis of your uniqueness; they set you apart from all others in this world, animate or inanimate, intelligent or simple. Your mind is the embodiment of your self, and from this mind are generated your words and beliefs and actions, completely regardless to those of others. You have made yourself what you are, a perfect individual.

You have dealt with life and its many facets, nuances, and complexities for all of your existance. You have struggled to understand and solve many kinds of problems that have faced you, ranging from social to emotional to parental to mathematical. Every obstacle you overcome turns itself into an intangible accomplishment backing you up, making you stronger and increasing your capacity to cope with each deterent you encounter. This process is called growth, and its fruition is known as maturity.

You mature every day, perhaps ever so slightly, but you do. The past year, an uninvolved observer might say, has been like any other, yet you know this is untrue. You have, this year, met your own challenges and overcome them, or, perhaps less romantically, succumbed to them. But both experiences, victory and acceptance of defeat, provide room for growth and maturation, and each of you, consciously or not, has grown daily. You have grown as students, expanding and adding to your years of accumulated knowledge, probing more deeply into your academic preferences and dislikes. You have grown as athletes, learning about competition sportsmanship, victory and defeat. You have grown as friends, becoming closer as experiences are shared, and most importantly, you have grown as individuals, defining and sharpening the lines of your characters, formulating your goals, and achieving maturity. You're special, Panthers. Here's to you!

ERFECTION

We all strive for it, the abil-ity to succeed in every-ing we do. Indeed this aspira-on of perfection is not foreign many here at Prospect as e all try to do our best. How-ver, high school is not merely a lace to achieve the 4.0 GPA the nomination of Home-oming Queen, but rather, it is so the time in our lives for ach of us to develop his own nique spirit. The days we've ent here at PHS will forever ave a lasting mark on our per-nalities, and the happenings roughout our high school ca-ers definitely will shape our haracter for years to come. l the trials and struggles e've suffered through, the nglish tests never studied for nd the football games lost in ver time, as well as the suc-esses, the "A" earned in math the role of head of a given ommission, have all inched us loser to our goal of perfection. ut what is perfection? Surely is word signifies different eanings to each individual, et one needs to realize that ccess isn't the only route to erfection, but failure as well. eing able to stand on one's wn two feet, maturity, emo-onal development; ideals hich we are inching closer to very minute, are all realistic oals of ours. So, as one comes realize, success in one's aspi-tions is not solely responsible r the attainment of our bet-rment, for failure also enables to learn from our exper-nces and develop modified eas due to various outcomes situations. Finally, though, ne influence will have the reatest effect on our individ-al goals. The relationships and iendships made in high school ill be remembered and cher-ned for the rest of our lives. ne bonds made here at Prospect encourage ur independence and self-worth, in so making a ore caring, deeper person than before. So, hat is perfection? No one can answer that. ow do we achieve it? Living. Learning. Being.

ACHIEVEMENT

So, you've finally made it through another year . . . a year of lunch lines, overdue books, failing grades . . but cheer up! The summer is finally here! Now's the time for sun, sand, swimming, and hot summer nights! Sitting pretty in your string bikini by the pool next week, you'll probably be wondering why the heck you were wasting your time in school to begin with! But think a sec; take time to remember one thing: THOSE HIGH SCHOOL DAYS WERE SOME OF THE BEST DAYS OF YOUR LIFE! Cliché though it may be, those magic words ring true upon reflection as every day in PHS this past year has left some memory that brings a smile to the face or a tear to the eye. You've accomplished a lot this year, whether it was getting a "B" in English, making the number one seed spot on the tennis team, winning the best act of the variety show, or finally meeting that cute guy or gal winking at you from across your Spanish class. Not only have you braved another 9 months toiling over your homework, you've also strengthened the bonds of friendship between your fellow "jailmates." Indeed, the gang sure made even Latin fun! The pranks, jokes, knowing looks kept that room jumping for sure! And all of this mayhem co-existed with your maturity developing, giving you more confidence and pride in yourself than ever. So when reflecting back on your golden years at Prospect High, remember the struggles you had with academics at times, but DON'T forget the fun times! Yelling at the homecoming football game, gliding across the dance floor at the Prom with the dream date of your life, and laughing with friends as you shared your daily antics together with a sort of comraderie you'll never experience again.

REWARDS

High School . . . supposedly the best time in your life, a time to grow, a time to enjoy yourself. High school, an obviously very busy time in everyone's life. Many a freshman has entered into Prospect with the hopes of becoming a metamorphasized person: a person loved and adored by all, toasted by the faculty with every word. However, this dream typically does not evolve itself into reality for most students. Then why do you do what you do?

Throughout high school many changes occur. Along with academic growth comes physical and emotional growth, and for many students the first few, awkward experiences at school give way to an awakened self-assuredness which advents the beginnings of first love. Also, with the trials and tribulations of the daily regimen, friendly faces are met and friendships develop. Later through the years, these relationships mature as individuals pass through adolescence, making lifelong pals of many high school class buddies.

And, on the scholarly side of secondary school, the ninth through twelfth grades give you time to mature, releasing you to begin making decisions on the direction of your life. Maybe the "A" in Algebra II or the lead part in the school play helped you decide on a career, as high school truly is the most evident influence on your future.

So, what do you get in return for sticking it out 4 years in high school? You get the rewards of maturity, development, experience, and knowledge in a cornucopia of directions of your life.

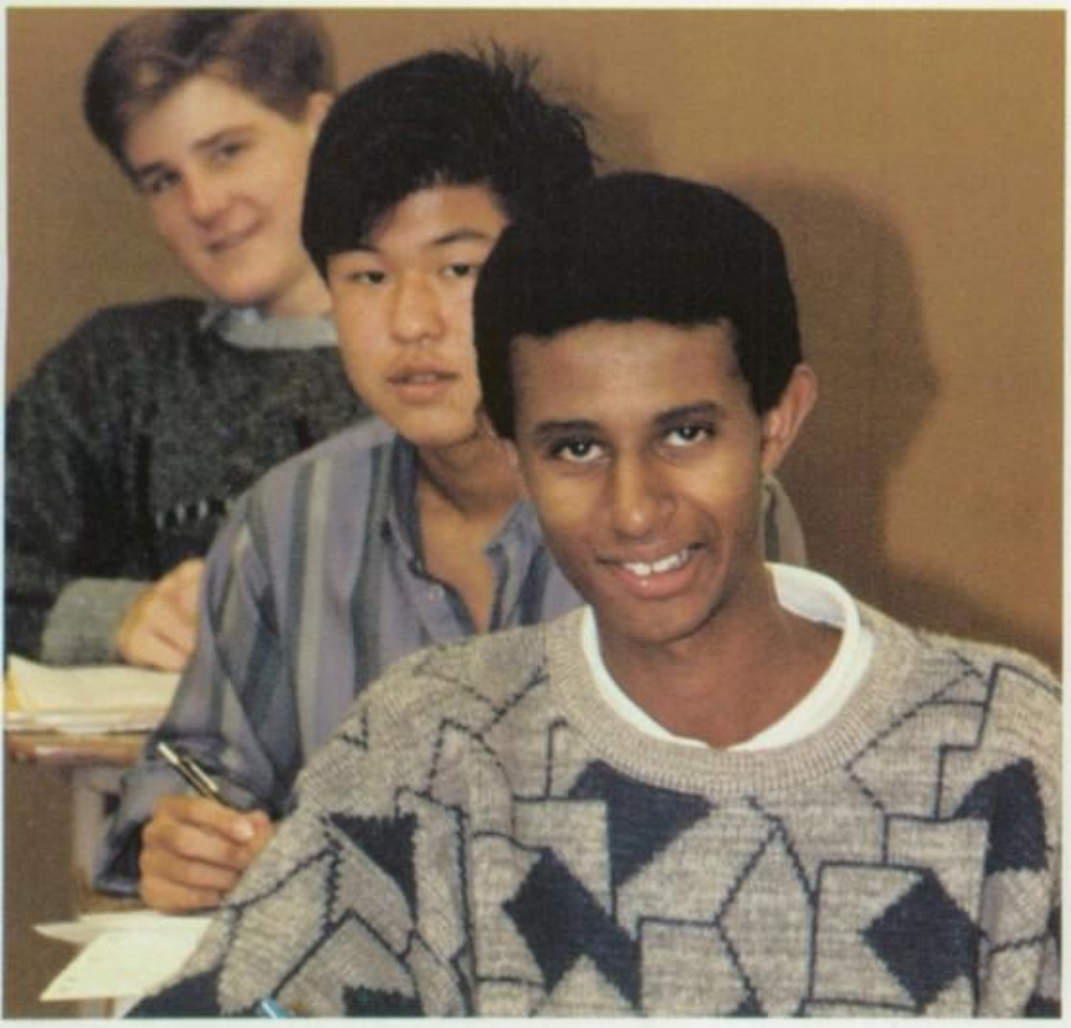
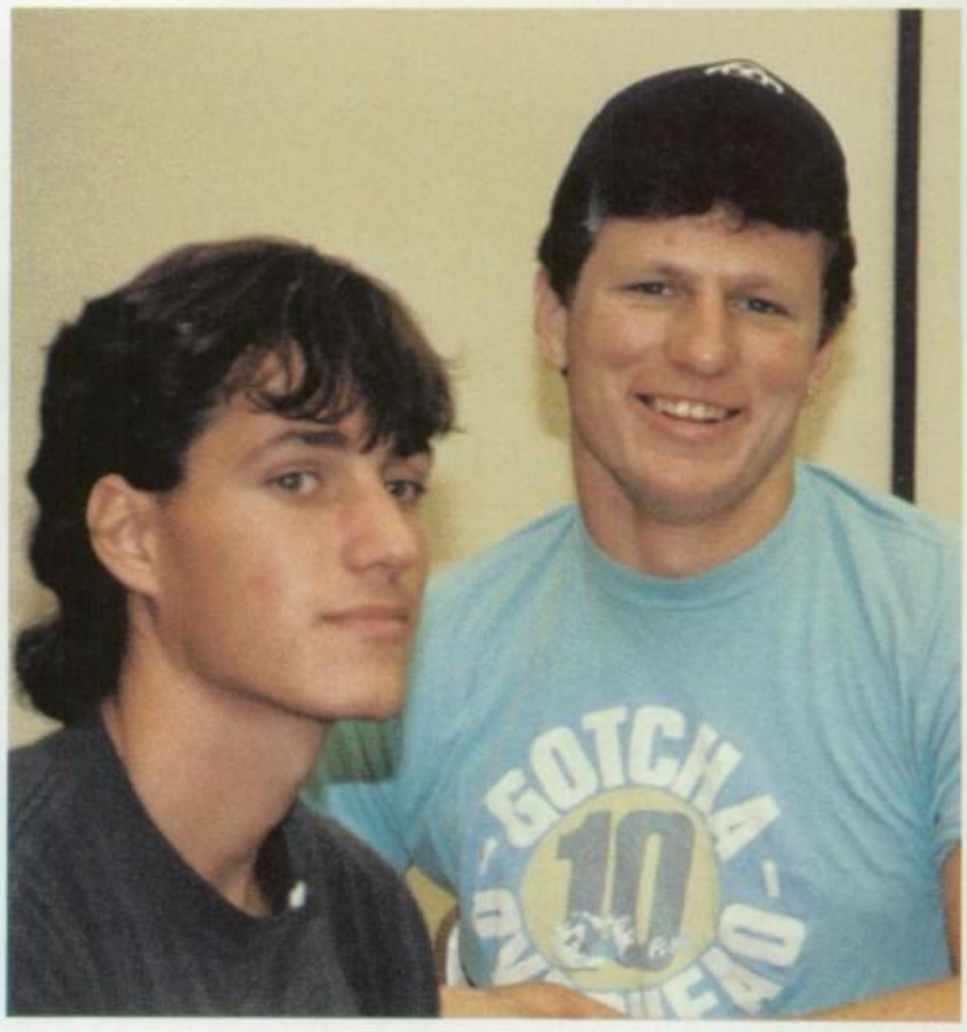
APPRECIATION.
Oh, no! Sleeping in again! That quick five-minute nap after turning off your alarm has turned into . . . forty-seven minutes?!! Stumbling into the shower while attempting to brush your teeth simultaneously has been determined by the surgeon general to be hazardous to your health. Oh, well, who cares?

Does this situation sound familiar? It should as many of us encounter a "bad day" every now and again. Now be real, haven't you ever looked in the mirror in the morning and said, "Why me?" And some days, no matter how long you take, you just can't make yourself socially presentable. Well, one musn't dwell on the bad experiences and trials of high school (like an alarm clock that doesn't shut off), but he or she must learn to appreciate these years at our beloved learning institution.

Beloved learning institution? You've got to be kidding. Well, think about it for a minute, all the days you've spent at PHS, friends you've made for lifetime, and the experiences that have helped you grow. Remember all the silly jokes laughed about at lunch, the 6:00 am wake up for decorating during spirit week, the notes passed back and forth in biology class, even your freshman picture in the yearbook. These are all memories from Prospect which you will treasure forever.

In conclusion, you must, throughout high school, learn to laugh at the good, forget about the bad, and learn to appreciate these precious moments of your life. These times will never return; live them to the fullest.





GROWING

Some of us here at Prospect High will never grow —- at least not in our hearts. We will always be the adorable pranksters and sometimes the not-so-adorable freshmen tapers. But we will all grow in our minds with the help of our high school gang to become a full personality. We've learned to take the best with the worst, the good times with the bad, and triumph with defeat. All these experiences slowly transformed us from carefree youngsters to responsible young adults. Growing up is an integral part of everyone's life and the students of Prospect High helped one another to become the best that we can be and let others be themselves. Look back at the past years and then to the present; notice the many changes in people that have taken place over the years. We are more matured, self-confident and more optimistic then when we entered Prospect. For all these, we can thank the people of Prospect who will always be our friends and a part of our memories forever. As we take a step into the future, we will look back at our past and remember the hardships and the joys of growing up with Prospect High.

ORIGINAL.
That's what Prospect is all about because the students make it so. We are all unique in our own way and Prospect empasses encompasses a wide range of race, culture and personalities. This school works as "a melting pot" with each one of us contributing a part of ourselves into this giant pot to become one special group. Our school is original because no other school in the whole world has people like us. Hey, what can be said but that we're just the cutest bunch of people and who could resist us. We try our best to make everyday worthwhile. Everyday is a challenge for us students (and the faculty) when we put our creative minds together and create all sorts of mischief. Each class has diverse range of talents and together they encompass many different abilities. Our ability to support and depend on each other and to have fun is just a part of our special friendship. But we are also special just because we are a part of Prospect and Prospect will always be a part of us. Someday we'll remember the little things that seemed to have gone unnoticed and it'll remind us of the best times of our lives. The deepest and the darkest secrets that we shared and the many gossips that we weren't suppose to share. The hallways are always buzzing with, "Don't tell anyone else but, _____" Did you hear what happened to _____" laughter and giggles. These everyday happenings are what makes Prospect unique. They seem unimportant and trite today, but treasure these moments because a moment is just a moment and it'll never come more than once in a lifetime and there is only one Prospect High School. Prospect exists because we exist, Prospect is "our school" and nobody else but we can claim that.

"NEW FRONTIERS"- the phrase sounds like something you would hear on an episode of "Star Trek". But actually, the term applies to every student here at Prospect High.

For example, take the Freshmen class. Having just graduated from being the "big 8th graders" on campus at their junior highs, these students are suddenly thrust into a new school, where the classes are harder, the teachers more demanding, and a greater emphasis is placed on socializing. 9th graders appreciate the freedoms of high school, but also learn to accept the responsibilities that come with privileges. Freshmen truly do explore a "new frontier".

Next are the sophomores. These kids are no longer the awkward freshmen who were pushed around by seniors. They've gained confidence in themselves, and begin to carve out nitch in the structure of the school. However, sophomores soon become acquainted with a whole new vocabulary- words such as COLLEGE, PRESSURE, and STUDYING. They've reached, hopefully, a new plateau of maturity.

The juniors, now upperclassmen, turn their sights towards the FUTURE, and can finally make all their hard work pay off. Students really start getting involved in school-related activities in their junior year, and also experience feelings of school pride. Most juniors have reached the "I'm not sure but I think I want to _____ with my life" stage. This statement changes at least 10 times throughout the year for every junior, as planning for the future becomes increasingly important.

Finally, there remains the Senior class. This class is truly exploring a "new frontier", for after 9 short months of school, these students will be released into the REAL WORLD-a place full of jobs, colleges, expenses, and many new and different responsibilities. Seniors must choose a direction to take in their lives, make new friends, and learn to make adult decisions. This class is entering the scariest, most difficult, and most exciting frontier of all: LIFE.

Each class at Prospect is in a stage of exploration, hopefully preparing them for successes, failures, and life in general. For in fact, life is just a series of new frontiers.

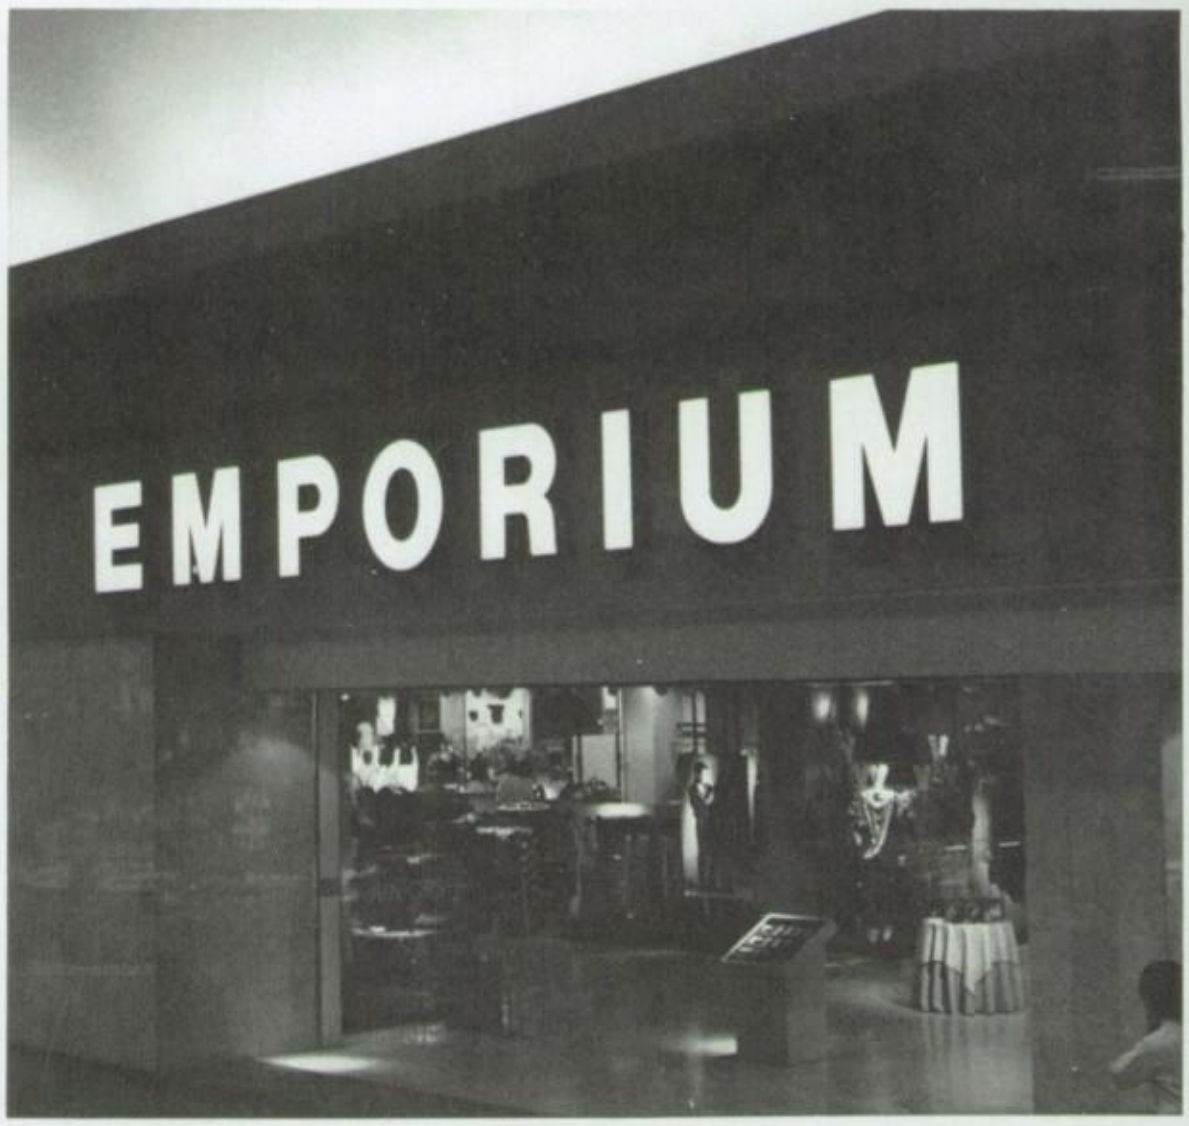
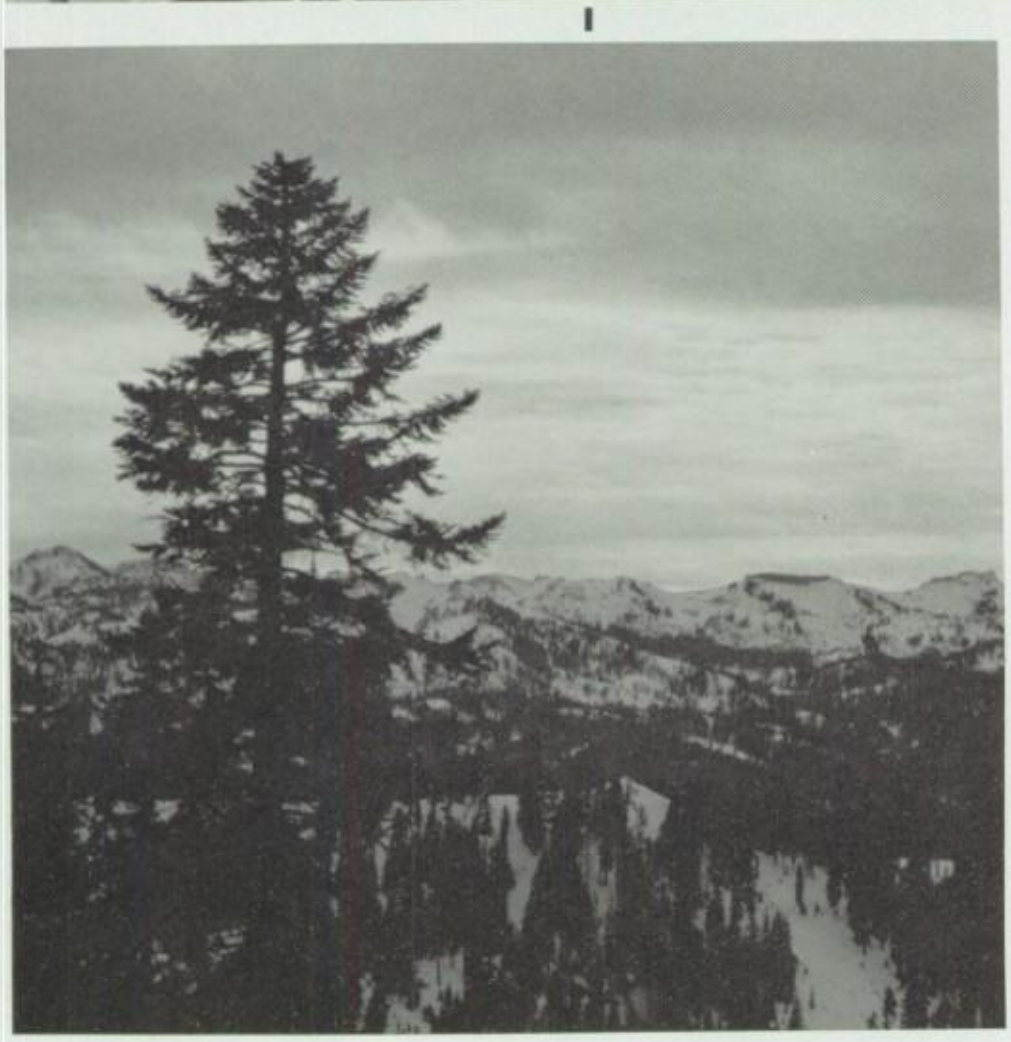
Student Life

Look Out Weekend, 'Cause Here I Come.



I. magin



"It's Friday!" The most welcome phrase heard in Prospect's hallowed halls. Usually, it was followed by: "What are you doing tonight? Did you hear . . . "

Weekends for Prospect students were active, to say the least. For example, a variety of restaurants such as Chili's, Squeezer's, T.G.I. Friday's, and that old stanby, Denny's, provided good food and an entertaining atmosphere for those with harty appetites. A big "thanks" is certainly due to those waiters and waitresses who put up with all the requests for "a table for ten, please" when the gang decided to go out to dinner.

But because these restaurants catered to the Saturday Night Crowd, they were not the places where a couple could enjoy a cozy, quiet candle-lit dinner. In fact, a fried-shrimp eating contest was more likely to break out than a budding romance!

If that weren't enough excitement for a lifetime, there was always the option of going to the movies. This year we saw Crocodile Dundee go to New York, Three Amigos go to Mexico, and Eddie Murphy set out in search of the Golden Child. If high prices were a problem, the "Dollar Movies" offered a cheaper alternative. Admission prices could even be bypassed entirely if a friend was working the entrance!

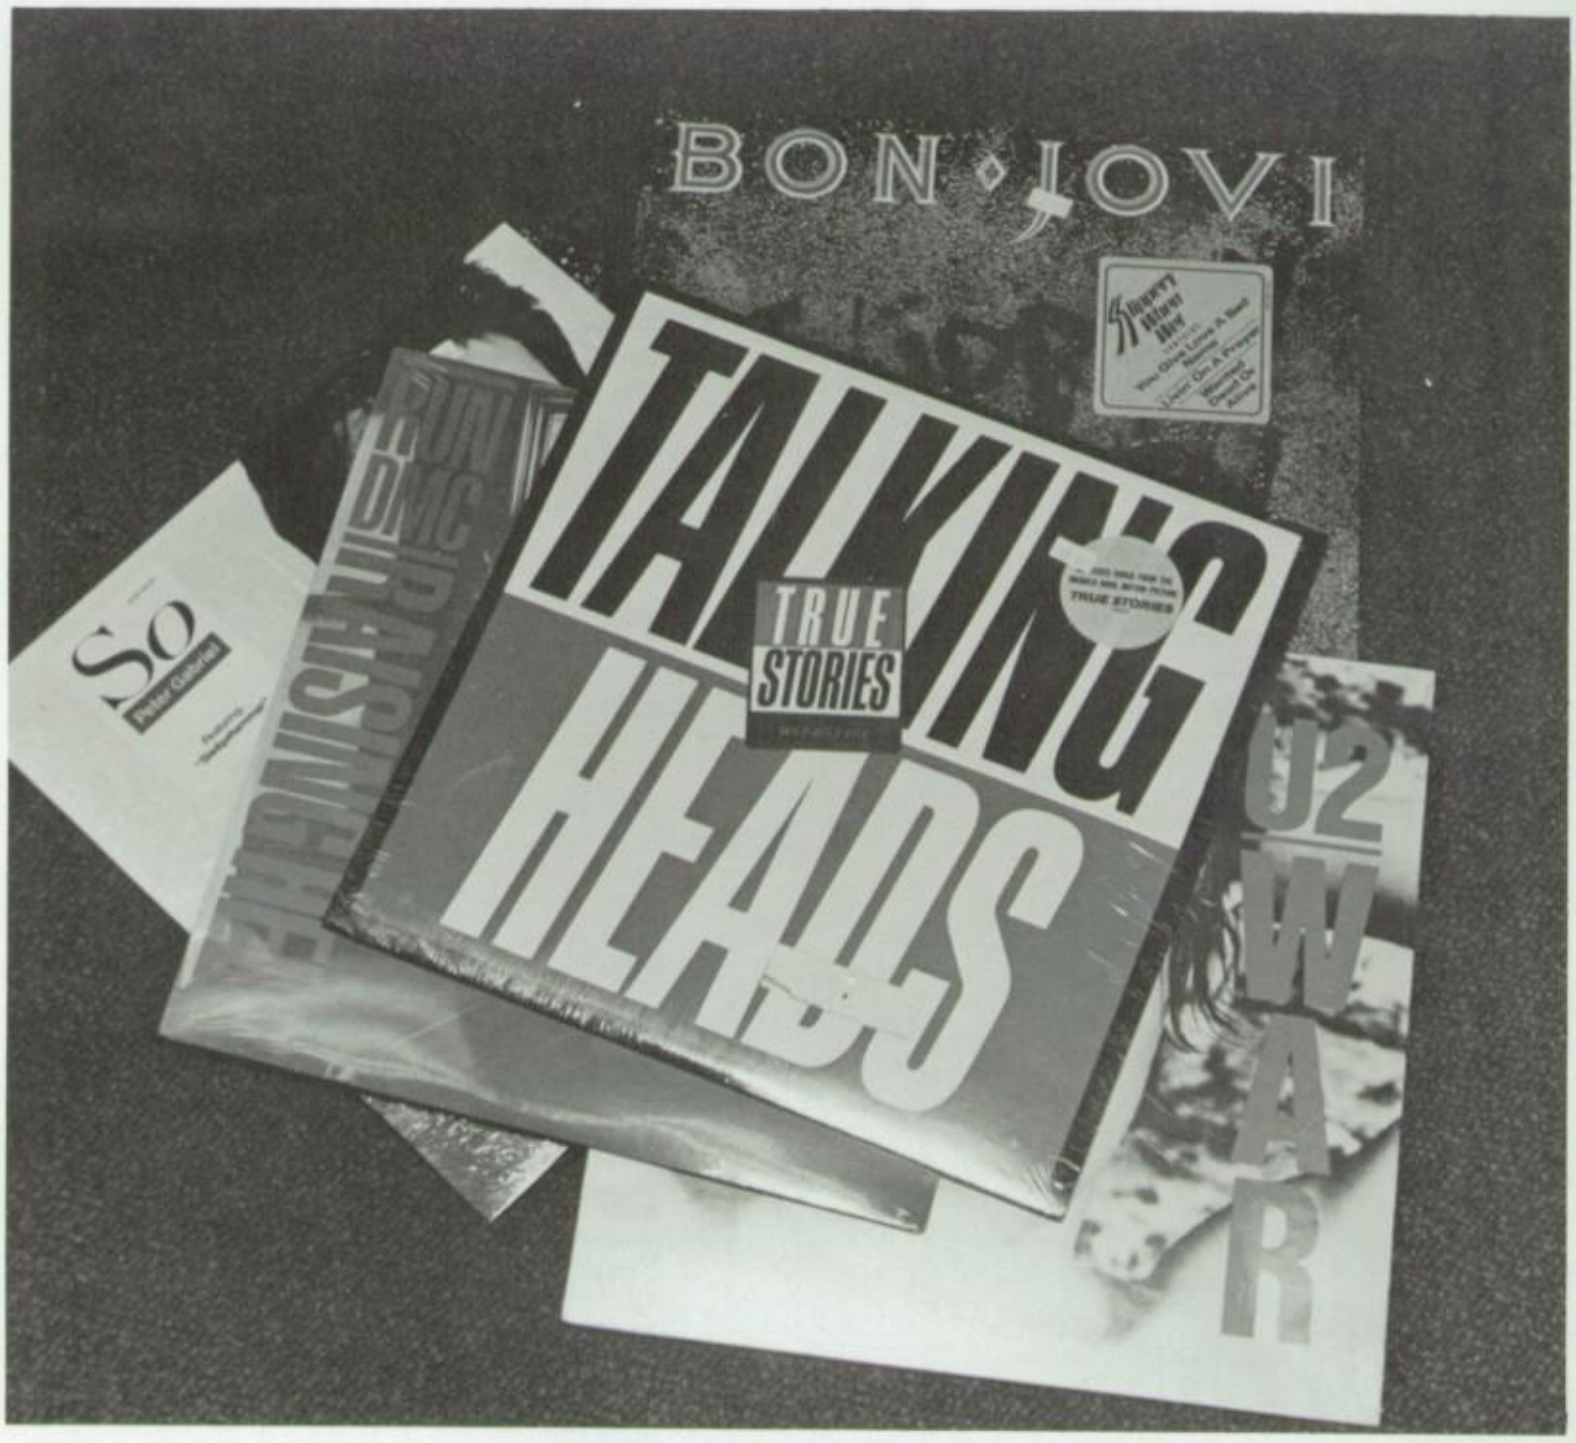
Mother nature brought us a gift in the wintertime . . . SNOW! This meant many trips to Tahoe, either with parents, friends, or organized trips with clubs such as Young Life, which made its annual outing to Utah. Students were willing to pay any price to ski, even if it meant missing a Friday or a Monday of school (sorry, Deans!).

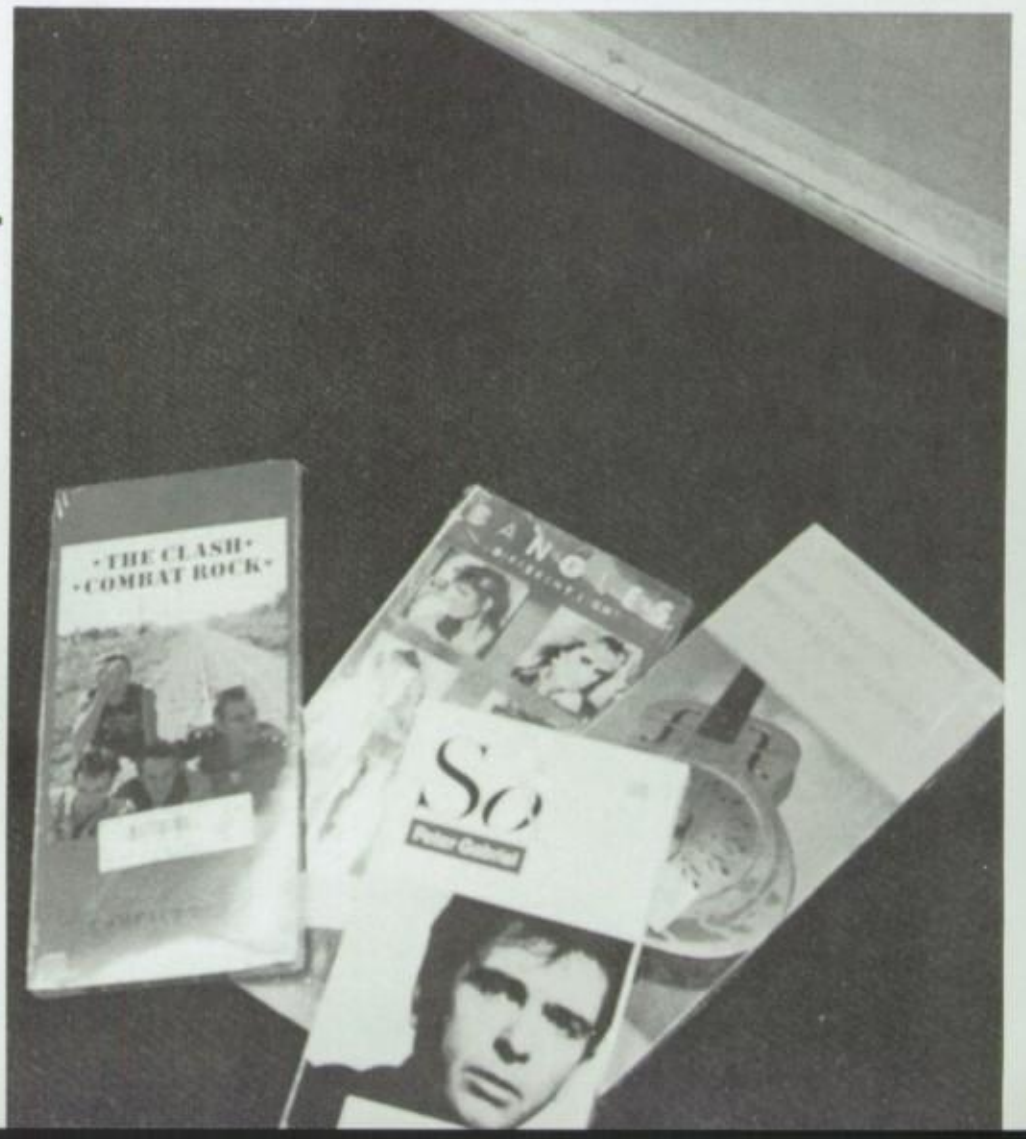
After the snow melted, we all broke out the suntan oil and sunglasses and hit the BEACH!! Many students returned to school following long tanning sessions in Santa Cruz with tans worthy of a native Jamaican (or a lobster, if the suntan lotion failed). Those who couldn't quite get over the hill often enough spent their weekends in tanning salons, but we weren't fooled. (Been to Executan, lately, dude?). However, artificial light was no substitute for the warm sand and cool waves of the beach. Suddenly, more and more kids became mysteriously "sick" on Fridays, and weekend homework was not being completed (Must've left it at the beach, teach!). Weekends were extended to include Mondays, Fridays, and any other day when the temperature was up.

Of course, none of these activities could equal the perennial PARTY. "Are there any parties this weekend?" was a common question heard around Wednesday or Thursday. The Prospect grapevine could circulate any information to the whole school by brunch-even to Freshmen! Or, an even more effective method was the attach-flyers-to-car-windshields- in-the-parking-lot. More than any other weekend activity, partying was by far Prospect's most popular.

Parties, movies, ski trips, and tanning sessions at the beach were just a few of the activities that made 1986-87 at Prospect a year to remember.

Gimmie A Beat!





"I'll Listen To Anything, Really!" Steve Ritter, Sr.

Surf punks, Hard rock, New wave, Classical, Pop, Metal, Soul, and even Western. These are some music types that have gripped the Prospect Scene. Sid Vicious, Valen Halen, the Monkees, Alphaville, Run DMC, Genesis and Tschaikovsky each have had myriads of ardent followers this past year, in past years, and it is most likely that they shall continue to draw Panthers in the years to come.

Yet, every kind of music is played on certain radio stations; every combination of artists creates a variety of releases promoted by an acclaimed tour of concerts.

Moreover, each individual makes a unique decision as to what comprises his or her choice stations and artists. One may listen to "the rock of the bay" to a station at which " every song is a strong song", or to the "wave of the 80's." Stations come in from Los Altos Hills, SJ, Los Gatos, San Mateo, and SF; Each usually plays its own genre of music and nothing more.

This is where individuals choose their music, and then choose their favorite dance places, groups, and concerts.

Besides the Prospect cafeteria, students seek clubs to slam, break, sway and worm to their favorite tunes. Choices range from the dulldrums of Essex to the excitement of the Vortex or Palladium of Palo Alto. Others have interests at One Step Beyond—yes, those are dryers on the ceiling!!

Moving along to concerts, performers of the likes of OMD, Genesis, Beastie Boys, Psychedelic Furs, and Whitney Houston scheduled stops in the Bay Area. Overall, audiences were surprised and pleased at their choices.

As Panthers listen to a wide variety of stations, including KSJS, KATD, KSOL, KITS, KWSS, KSCU, KOME, etc., they should have a few opinions about their music, right?

"I have nothing to say about music, except that a lot of good groups are getting ruined by trendies."—John D"Avolio (Sr.)

In conclusion, music at Prospect and everywhere else is an individual form of expression. Each facet is a unique and singular art which should continue as an unprejudiced and uncensored freedom.

Let's Do Lunch!

Here's a common situation: you're sitting in class (right in the middle of an English test, of course!), and then it happens. From the depths of the unknown, a horrendous growl draws the attention of the entire class. Oh, how embarrassing! Was that really ME?!! Well, obviously your stomach is trying to tell you something—"FEED ME!", and it's not being subtle.

So, what's a Panther to do? Options are limited as you're stuck without wheels at lunch. Finally you decide to cruise the cafeteria in search of . . . hmm . . . that's certainly not it!

As you flee those double doors in horror, you glance at your watch to see whether or not you have the time to run to McD's for a quick bite. Still, you remember that obnoxious burp you gave in Math last week after jogging back to campus before fifth period, so you decide to skip that plan.

Doesn't this dilemma sound familiar? And worst of all, this can be such a dire emergency for some of us, due to the fact that food is so important. Yes, admit it, it is! Just think, how often do you stop your shopping to grab a snack at that trendy cafe? Or maybe you decide to go all out for a date to dine at a snazzy restaurant? However you choose a meal, though, one thing's for sure: you're going to enjoy it. So, to all the PHS student body, good luck in your culinary conquests, and BON APPETIT!

While carousing the PHS scene, students were asked, "What is the most exotic food you like to eat?" After considerable deliberation, here are some choice responses we received:

Robert Yount(Sr.)- Banana stew.
Jennifer Lee(Jr)- Shark fin soup.
Doug Gabbard(Sr)- Hamhocks and grits.
Darryl Wong(Frosh)- Tv dinners.
Rori McGill(Sr)- Cocoa Krispies.
Laurie Babb(Sr)- Kraft twistie macaroni.
Scott Nickel(Sr)- Chili cheeseboat.
Kristen Menefee(Sr)- OUR CAFETERIA FOOD!
Sonia Delgado(Sr)- Strawberries and cream, in the company of a handsom man.

And, for the rest of you out there, the question, "Where would you take a date to eat?" was asked. Some of the most unique replies are here:

Ricky Lau(Sr)- To a romantic picnic on a hill under the stars, with a half a tank of gas.
Kristen Menefee(Sr)- Hard Rock Cafe in Utah.
Audrey Kawaye (Sr)- IN-N-OUT BURGER, Southern California.
Ryan Temple(Frosh)- Woolworth's Luncheonette in Westgate.
Tom Sachen(Sr)- Buy th' Bucket.
Jack Kalpakian(Jr)- Chili's.

It's Hip

tyle. It's something you all have. It's that special style that akes you each different. It can be classy or casual, wild or eserved, but it's yours and yours alone. It's the way you walk nd the way you talk; it's in your laughs and sighs, but most of all 's in the way you dress.

anthers went back in time this year as the ghost of fashion past aunted PHS. Ornate baroque and Renaissance jewelery dorned hip Prospect women, and 1880, wicked-witch-of-the-est black boots, a la Janet Jackson, were seen on the feet of any a hot momma. The Old West came back to life as denim lattered Prospect in the form of jeans, jackets, and long, full irts. Rhinestones and fringe were also liberally used, on everying from blouses to boots, to extend the Western theme. watches started to fade from the scene, and Espirit wasn't as opular as it has been, while Forenza became the brand to own. weaters got bulkier, metalic shoes and shirts were ever- present, and no one will forget the biggest fashion splash of 86-87, e Alice in Wonderland bow, which was worn in hair that was creasingly longer and softer this year.

hile girls' hair got longer, guys' remained short, and more Prosect men than ever discovered the wonders of gel this year. uys were classier this year as T-shirts and sweats were outnumered by sweaters, button-up shirts, nicer pants, and an occaonal tie. 501's were still popular, but to lesser extent than in the ast. One word to describe Panther men: clean-cut.

e biggest fashion news of 86-87 was probably the opening of alley Fair in November. The mall hosts Emporium, Macy's (comete with an extensive mens' department), and Nordstroms. oth sexes enjoy Banana Republic, ACA Joe, Benneton, and the ap. For the ladies, there is a variety including Et Cetera (exclusively accessories) and three Espirit Stores, and the guys get to hoose from some great stores like Jay Jacobs, Chess King, and BC1.

f course, if none of this appealed to you this past year, there as always Westgate, El Paseo, Vallco, Stanford, Prune yard, own-town Los Gatos, San Francisco ... No matter what your reference in stores, your purchases obviously suited your personalities, and, Prospect, you've got style!

Not Another Day . . .

Today was not to be a normal day in Spanish. Mary and Jerry usually walk down the hall they have Spanish class they have together. They do so today meet their friend Simon, and turn the corner quickly to get to class before the bell rings. RRING! Too late, Mrs. Strict Teacher will now want a pass. Ugh. They go to class anyway. Maybe Mrs. Strict Teacher will be sympathetic. Jerry opens the door to chaos. The three late students cheer in unison, "Yea! A sub!"
-Why are you students late?
The substitute is a short skinny woman mkaing spasmodic and harsh gesticulations. She slashes at the air with her arms and then stabbed once at each student.
-You, you, and you
A wad of paper is winged across the room and tags Simon in the back of the head, an act unseen by the sub . . .
-Ooomph!
-Excuse me young man? Speak up!
-Uum, I forgot my book and so I went to . . . to get it. YEAH!
-Oh, okay, what about this whippersnapper and this young missy?
-I . . . we were at . . . um . . . Student Council.
-That's right. I'm Student Mayor and he's the Student Premier . . . or something like that.
-Oh, okay.
A paper airplane whizzes next to the teacher, unbeknownest to her. The teacher meanders cooly up to the front of the room and speaks.
-Even though this si only Spanish II and I can't speak a word of Spanish even if I tried, you will behave and follow the directions the normal teacher has left.
-Someone in the back spits out a line.
-Well you certainly are the abnormal teacher.
Laughs and snickers bubble throughout the room.
Sam Spud, the Stud, had made that attention-getting comment; yet the substitute galloped down an aisle and picked Pete Porker, the Pud, who was busily picking his nose.
-I could send you to the Dean's for saying that.
Pete ignored her and continued with his business.
Meanwhile, Simon was occupying himself by stealing everyone's writing instruments and throwing them at the ceiling until they stuck.
-Young man, is that necessary?
-Well, Sam said that he'll pay me $5 and buy me a burrito if I can beat last week's record of ten in a row, so I think it is.
By then the sub had forgotten the pens in the ceiling and was concentrating on writing the date on the chalkboard. She got no further than "Tuesday, the 17th" when Sly Sally spoke up.
-If today is Tuesday, we're supposed to play games like Monopoly in Spanish.
A half a dozen students break to get the games and begin the rutkus.
-But these games weren't even made in Spanish!
-That's ok Mrs. Substitute, we'll think in Spanish while we play.
-Everyone had fun that day, playing monopoly and checkers. Hardly anyone noticed that the teacher just sat at her desk pulling at tufts of her hair and fumbling with papers.
That's funny, we never had that teacher again when Mrs. Strict Teacher was absent. That's too bad. -that substitute was great.

Is That You Again?

Picture this: it's Brunch time, and you're waiting in line to buy something sugar-coated. Standing next to you just happens to be that gorgeous special someone from your math class. You smile at each other and begin talking. "How did you do on that quiz?" Just as the conversation turns to more meaningful subjects, like Friday night, you feel a tugging at your shoulder and turn to see your little sister (a freshman) staring up at you.

"Can I borrow your P.E. shorts? I forgot mine." Perfect timing, Sis.

Such is the typical life of siblings who attend the same school. This situation can be either fun or frustrating, but more often it's both. I know — I'm speaking from experience. This year I became a senior, and my little sister entered Prospect as a freshman.

At first, it was fun. Before school even started, I terrorized her with horror stories about upperclassmen taping select frosh to poles, or placing them rather violently into garbage cans. I warned her not to dress, walk, eat, or talk like a dork. "Don't wear all your new clothes on the first day of school. All the freshmen do that." "Don't say 'awesome', you'll sound like a geek." (You get the idea). But when she asked me directions to the quad, I just about lost hope.

She adapted pretty quickly. She learned her way around Prospect's HUGE campus, figured out which nicknames to call which teachers behind their backs, and remembered to ALWAYS let a senior cut in front of her in line.

Soon I found out that having a sibling at school can be a pain, though. When she stayed home sick, I had to go around to all of her teachers to get her homework. When she wanted to go to the library to "study" with her friends, I had to be the chauffeur. And when she couldn't pay her library fine, I let her use my card to check out that book she needed, which she promptly lost - and I got the bill.

Then she discovered the phone. I got sick and tired of answering the phone, expecting a call, and hearing the squeaky voice of one of her giggly freshmen friends. Many arguments (and a broken phone) were the result.

All in all, things worked out fairly well. We got the phone fixed, and I made my parents drive my sister around from then on. (We had fun gossiping about school life (and oh how exciting it was), and I gave my educated opinions about the men in her life. ("Oh, he's a wimp. He carries 15 pens in his pocket. He's so stupid, he's got an IQ smaller than his shoe size.") I think we both learned a lot; she learned to adjust to the fact that I'll be leaving for college in the fall, and I had to adjust to the fact that she's growing up, too (even though she's not much taller than Mr. Wizard). Such is life for siblings at Prospect High.

College Applications

Hmm . . . where to start? My name, okay, got that. Social Security number? Let me check. What next? Oh, no! My grades in all my classes from the last four years? How should I know? Now how do I fill out this scantron thing?

Indeed this conversation can sound very familiar for any ill-prepared Senior opening a college application for the first time. One has to realize the great time and care the UC colleges, state colleges, or any private colleges across the country have put into compiling an application to assess your high school achievements, evaluate your capabilities, project your potential, and utterly confuse you in the process of trying to fill it out. "Describe your past successes and failures and their impact on your persona, your present day goals, and your future objectives to change the face of the world . . . all in five hundred words or less." And I don't get paid to do this!

Obviously, Seniors have to keep a light heart and a happy face when filling these universal pains in the you-know-what out. You're not alone and if you understand these forms, you MUST be crazy!

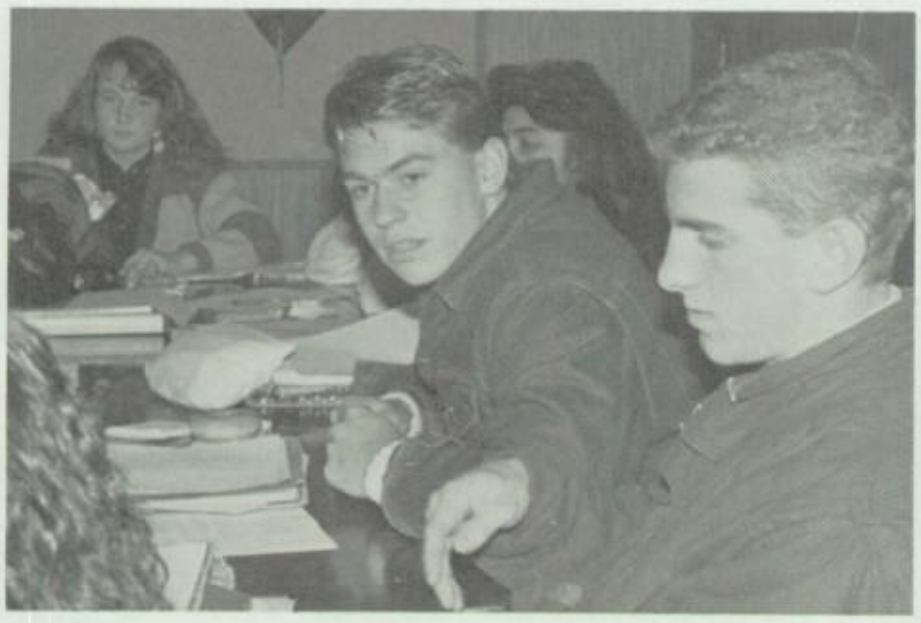
It's Council. . .
Student Council if your're NASTY!



(top left) Jon Kissane listens to all comments. (top right) Sean, "Ok, Laura, stop talking!"(below) "Some people owe quite a bit for doughnuts!" "Chimene, what do you think we should do?" Chimene gulped, "Uh, oh!"

What does Student Council actually do? A question asked by many a student here at Prospect. When an unknowning freshmen was asked this question, his response was, "Uh, I think they do stuff for the students." Student Council does do a lot of "stuff" for the students. Representatives from each class go to weekly meetings and discuss ways to modify and improve our school. Nancy Talbot (treas.) collected 25¢ from anyone who did not attend a meeting and 10¢ if anyone was late. This went into a morning doughnut fund. Some people, like Chimene and John D., were rumored to owe quite a bit. Student Council started the year off with the annual ice cream social for new students. The biggest project of the year was Homecoming. A lot of work was put into finding cars for the royal court's ride at the game and deciding the point values for Spirit Week. Next on the agenda was beautification of the school. This included new plants, painting picnic tables, and mainly fixing up the school. They also did a lot of preparation for the Feb. 20 annual Student Council Beach Dance. They planned to have pictures, plastic leis, and strawberry daquiris (virgin, of course!) Student Council wound up the year by serving the faculty members breakfast on the day after school. This group of students work hard to make each year the best ever!

(top row) Nancy Talbot (treas.), Jon Kissane(A.S.B. Pres.), John D'Avolio (A.S.B. V.P.), Chimene Hickey(Sr. Rep.), Suzie Regul(Soph. Rep.), Marguerite Oneto(Rec. Sec.), Brandy Menefee(Frosh. In Charge Of It All

The Commissioners

The commissioners are a diverse group of people who are the leaders of their commission, as a president is to a club. They are chosen by their commission advisor and they must fill out an application to be approved by the Student Council to gain their position. The commissioners must fill out budget requests to Student Council in order for their commissions to be allocated money. The commissioners take care of any suggestions that their commissions receive, and they make sure that their commissions are running smoothly. Hats off to the 1986-1987 commissioners who donated their spare time to making sure that Prospect's commissions were successful.

It Is Not!. . .It Is So!

Still Debating

"Articulation perservered." This is the way that the 1986-87 Prospect Speech and Debate Team says, "Speech at its best." This dedicated bunch of talkers does much more than just talk. These guys act, demonstrate, reveal, and fight for what they believe in. Many of us think: "Big deal! Why do I want to waste my weekend wearing my Sunday clothes?" Speech tournaments are more than that, they get their students to display their views on life. And that is exactly what the members of Prospect's Speech and Debate Team are doing!

Art Commission

Members: Chris Harry (Commisioner), Cheryl Sano, Jessica Horgan, Michelle Marquette, Lisa Castly, Caroln Hastings, Lee Jung, Khoa Hoang, Binh Nguyen, Julia Wilson, Derek Smith, Stacey Mathews, Beth Varozza, Jose Castellon, Amy Hanson, Laurie Babb, Scott Baldwin, Bonnie Scott, Scott Cassell, Randee Randoll

Have you ever wandered into the main office and seen inspirational works of art on the walls or on the ceiling? Have you ever gone for it all and gone into the Art Room? Well the creative geniuses responsible for all these . . . abstract works are the members of the prospect 1986-87 Art Commission. This elite, little known group works throughout the school year to give our school a taste of art. And if any of you know the art teachers you know that it takes a lot of work before, during, and after school to produce something that will get those ever vigilant teachers to approve. Our congratulations and gratitude to the Art Commission for their work to make our school a better place to look at.

Dance Commission

Whadawedo whadawedo?!

This year has been full of truly remarkable events. "The deejay forgot to show up?!" But thru thick and thin 1986-87 Prospect Dance Commission has provided the student body of Prospect High with many successful dances. The members of the Dance Commission have also done a lot of work this year to make the Homecoming Dance, the Halloween Dance, and, of course the Christmas Dance the great dances that they were by putting up decorations, providing refreshments, and having photographers to capture those unforgetable moments at each dance. The Dance Commission isn't perfect but it sure does its best to give Prospect's students a good time.

Minds Under Pressure

Academic Decathalon

It's fall...a time for football, Halloween, back-to-school blues. Hey, it's also time for those diligent students pumped with brain steroids to again attack the Academic Decathalon! Really, this energetic group truly deserves recommendation as they spent veritable hours of their scarce spare time pouring over literature and pondering the solutions to the likes of math problems, using Algebra to Calculus techniques. And, hoorah! Our team did exceptionally well this year, receiving tenth place out of more than thirty schools. The competition took place at Mission College on November 15 as decathalon members sacrificed attending the Homecoming game to participate in this event. All in all the team did outstanding and congratulations are due to everyone involved for all their hard work and effort. Here's to you! Members: Mrs. Gudino, Ken Kim, Khoi Hoang, Jack Kalpakian, Jon Kissane, Miss Wong, Mike Graham, Dan Britt, Cheryl Sano.

Chess Club

The chess team of 1986-87 can be described as truly competitive. The team practiced an average of two hours a day as one could always find them checkmating before school, during tutorial, and during brunch. Mr. Granger, the rookie "coach" for the team described the group as, "A real team...there's no real superstar, but the whole group is improving. All but one of them are returning next year, so we look forward to some real super chess developing here." Again, congrats to those dedicated players; your season was terrific. Here's to you! Members: Brian Wilkes, Jason Wilkes, Jack Kalpakian, Rich Penland, Lesleigh Schauf, Chris Juris, Leo Shih, Ted Rallis, Paul Bozarth, Cheng Liu, Dan Halun

House Lights Down!

Drama shows many faces

The lights flicker, then dim. The audience hushes; the air electric with expectation. Slowly, the curtain rises. An actor appears, and the show is on! There are many people involved in making this all possible. The actors, of course, on the stage. But what about the people that control the lights, sound, and set changes? They are the Drama Commission. The Photo Commission this year was a truly dedicated, not to mention stressed-out, team. Actually Photo Commission (Photo Comm to its friends) was fun, until Amanda came around breathing flames and shooting magenta lazer beams from her eyes when an assignment was tardy. Not a day went by without hearing wails echoing from the dark room by the Photo Comm members that were chained to their enlargers. "Please, please, no more printing!" Finally, once unstrapped, we reentered the white-light world, pupils dilated (a painful experience) and visions of spots dancing everywhere (totally annoying). At that moment, you discover Yearbook Commission (who were totally flawless) had no idea what happened to the prints you had just made. "We don't have them!" Deadlines were always great, too! Mr. Browning (J.T. to his friends) would be so sneaky and tell us our deadlines were a week early (good try) they showed up a week late anyway. For all you Photo Comm Alumni out there, does this ring a bell: "Who has Photo Comm Paper?" or "I had F.B.L.A. at brunch?" or always famous "Why do we have to do all the work?" (take a guess on that one.) Joe, thanks for all of the guidance and leadership! it would have been bloodshed without you. You ARE the best. It's been fun, but now it's done! PHOTO COMMISSION OF '87!

Don't stress! Dip queen, dip queen, dip queen! I did it again!! These and many more famous sayings were too often quoted from our Senior Editors who are now permanently gray and on their way to Agnews. It's a lot of work. You know it is! All day staff "parties" were a highlight of '87. Don't forget the dance parties at Vern's. "You spin me around about 30% with a gray screen." The staff, besides learning how to write copy, has learned that when you need a question answered, you need to get all the editors together in order to get ONE answer. Ever been to a yearbook party just before a deadline? You can hear cries of: "I can't find a grease pencil!", "Will you crop my pictures for me AND count my copy?", "What's the job number?", and the ever famous, "But. . .(sniff). . .Mr. Browning said YOU had the pictures!" Seriously though, these great group of people learned a lot (even if they don't know it) while participating in the most enriching experience of their lifetimes. It was a great year. Here's to you!

Foreigners Invade Prospect!

Before I came to the USA I knew little about the states. I imagined California as just beach, sun and a lot of fun. Life here was a lot of fun, but I quickly figured out that it wasn't as easy as laying on the beach enjoying the sun. Here at Prospect everybody was so nice and helpful that I felt very welcomed.

I want to thank you very much for making my time here so great and special. It was a precious experience I will never forget. A special thanks goes to my host family, the Petrys, who were a great support in everything I tried to do. I think Prospect High is a great school and I wish I could have stayed longer. I will miss you all very much!

Love

Cory Borgards

The question I was always asked was, "So how do you like America?" Well now I can really answer "I really love it!" I spent one of my best years in this country. I had so many new experiences and so much fun, and I am sure I won't ever forget this.

When I first came here I considered some things as crazy, but now I think that they are very normal. (I guess I've also become a little bit weird. . . !)

I want to thank all of you, the teachers and my friends, for making this year so wonderful for me. A special thanks also to my host family, who made me really feel at home and Chimene who was always there as a sister and a friend. The time has passed so fast! I will miss you all!!!!

Love always,

Nicola Disko

I had a dream! And as I write this, my dream has become a reality. My dream was to attend an American High School for one year.

I am grateful for the opportunity to attend Prospect High. It has been a learning experience that I will never forget. In addition I will always remember the laughs about the fun times I have had with my friends.

I would like to thank the staff and the students at Prospect for helping me throughout the year. Thank you Kathy and also a special thanks to my host family Lois, Phil, and Karen.

TAKE CARE

1986-87 Foreign Exchange Students

There are countless memories that are coming to my mind. Everything had such a deep impact on me. I am very glad to have had such a chance as to meet my host family, teachers, and you this unforgetable year. All of you are so nice and kind.

I will go my own way and you will go yours, but we will never forget Prospect High!! Thank you for everything. Yes, you guys are AWESOME!

Love,

How Do They Feel?

Pep Club feels oh so good

Who are Prospect's most outrageous students? The Pep Club members, of course. Who else could get away with yelling "Hefty, Hefty, Hefty" in public? Cheerleaders beware because these gun-totin' fellows' goal in life is to shoot you with a disc pistol. These dedicated patrons of popcorn attend every game. Neither rain nor sleet nor metal bleachers keep these pepsters from their appointed duty. Want to lose your voice? Join this group of crazies. The following folks are Prospect's most loyal fans and are the backbone of school spirit: Kim Albert, Jennifer Bernal, Jim Blue, Gina Bowen, Paul Bozarth, April Brady, Kim Calk, Terri Clay, Beth Cramer, Cathy Davitt, Jackie Dumont, Sean Foster, Brad Hall, Dana Hamill, Wendy Hansen, Jenny Hau, Chimene Hickey, Sharon Hoyte, Jenny Hunt, Dave Jordan, Craig Jung, Kristin Keppel, Jon Kissane, Cathleen Law, Jennifer Lee, Aaron Luallen, Amy Lundgren, Ana Marcelic, Rhonda Martinez, Veronica McCarthy, Rori McGill, Erica Nillson, Laura Patterson, Julie Perl, Jeff Pi, Liana Reda, Eric Richey, Julie Rios, Steve Ritter, Bryce Rockwood, Lesli Schauf, Nichola Swanson, Alden Tanaka, Amber Weight, Aprille Weight, Amanda Willson, and Beth Varozza.

Who are those masked furballs cheering at the football and basket- all games? Why they are the mascots who provide all the goodies t the games. Our panthers started the year off by earning all uperior ribbons, a spirit stick, and a superior medal at summer amp. Deanna Erickson and Heather Dowling were the first mascots ver in Prospect's history to achieve the "Big E" award for having he most exaggeration. Even though the panthers went to camp y themselves they had fun doing their skit, "Oh boy, three flavors!" he mascots kept the crowd involved even when the score was w. Deanna states, "The mascots were hotter than ever this year!" Our panthers ended the year by attending several competitions nd being in the second mascot competition in Prospect's history.

Together They Make Things Work

Gina Booth and Tammy Hereford have been an essential part of the spirit commission. A lot of work is put forth in being spirit commissioners. One of the major jobs is organizing and planning for Prospect's own spirit competition. Both Gina and Tammy contribute ideas for rallies. Another one of their many jobs is helping to make sure all the spirit commission is at the games. The spirit commissioners are the key people behind Mr. MacDermott, the spirit advisor.

They've Got It!

Varsity Cheer

"Hey, are you taking my picture?"

Varsity Cheer demonstrates how effort and hard work pay off, as they show us what a real pyramid should look like.

Prospect Varsity Cheerleaders, how do you feel? During the summer of '86, at the camp of UC Santa Cruz, the answer was definitely obvious. "They feel good, oh they feel so good!" Who wouldn't after receiving the satisfaction of obtaining a Superior trophy and Spirit stick during their long and hard, yet FUN stay in the dorms. These Varsity Cheerleaders are yelling their hearts out at every football and basketball game, and whether they can be seen or not, there is no doubt that they can't be heard. Who are miraculous ladies? There is the leader of the pack, 4-year veteran Lori, Co-Capt. Michele, whom everyone turns to in the dark, the human garbage disposal, Janet, Miss Kim if you're nasty, the obsessed Solid Gold dancer, Alicia, happy camera Karen, Web, they love you, and maniac driver Jenny, thank god she never got her license at camp or they may never had made it home! Throughout their most embarrassing moments, they've survived the best year ever. 1986-87 Varsity Cheer!

J.V. Cheer Shows Us Their Spirit

Prospect J.V. Cheer

The Prospect J.V. Cheer, being made up of 5 sophomores and one freshmen (who's that Carri?), definitely took their part in showing their school spirit. To these bunch of pretty faces, cheerleading was more than just fun and games. It meant attending all the football and basketball games, no matter how late they went until, and performing at all the competitions, which seemed to drag on forever. However, there was one specific detail which set this year's J.V. Cheer apart from the former ones. That rare detail was the absence of the traditional complaining about having to take the bus to Vallco. Fortunately, they had the luxury in riding "D'Jitter" everywhere they went. As all the upperclassmen know, a car is the only way to go. With that bonus, the 1986-87 J.V. Cheerleaders had a fun and exciting year.

Pom Pom Power!

Varisty and J.V. Songgirls

The Varsity and JV Song Team works together, with all eyes watching.

Ilene Le Coq, Claudia Petry, Yvonne Olson, Nicole Cushman, Cathy Robins.

Rachel Haws, Kim Langoria, Michelle Regul, Stacy McKenna.

The 1986-87 Song Girl Team was an excellent group. Because there was so much talent, this was the first year we had both a Varsity and a Junior Varsity squad. The group went to many competitions in the spring and over the summer. They received "Superior" ratings at these competitions, and even acquired "The Stick", which is a prestigious award desired by every cheer team. Varsity Captain Yvonne Olson and Junior Varsity Captain Rachel Haws were very proud of their squads and led these teams to an excellent year. Their hard work at long afterschool practices paid off when their clean-cut precision showed through at football games. They impressed the student body at gym rallies with their quick moves on their difficult routines. The Song Girls this year were actually quite grateful to their uniform company, because the cowl necks helped them survive during the never-ending, freezing football games. CONGRATULATIONS!!! Thanks for a wonderful year full of the Prospect Song Girl spirit.

Can You Spell Prospect?

Lettergirls

The Lettergirls are a spirited group of girls ranging from freshmen to seniors. They practiced all summer long for two hours each morning, and continued all through the year after school.

Besides cheering at the football games, they also cheer at basketball games, paint the signs that the football players run through, and compete at spirit competitions during the latter part of the year.

The Lettergirls are the only squad that cheer at both the Junior Varsity and Varsity games. They also received the most spirited award twice while at camp, which is very rare, and won a superior trophy there.

Keep up the good work girls!

Is this the way we're supposed to do it?

Hit it Dave!

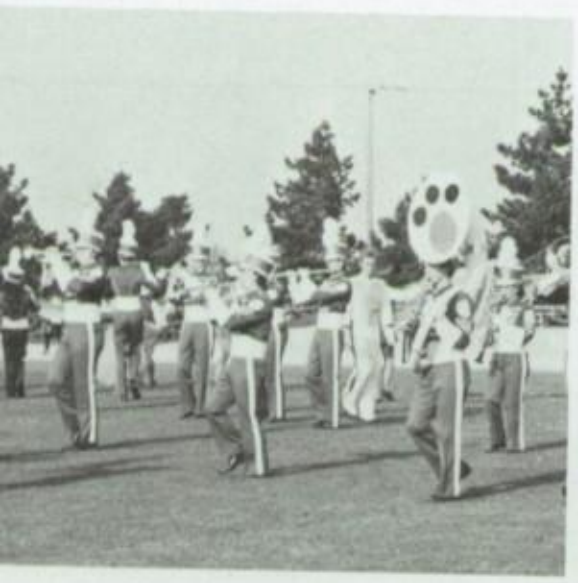
Take time for a moment and consider a band field show performance. The average person would say, "How hard can it be to toot a horn and walk?" Well, let me tell you, it's very hard. The whole show is made up of many minute parts that you, the audience, don't even realize. For example, take the music aspect of it. The music must have the right tones, the fingerings must be played right, the beat must be on time, the sound level must vary, the music must have expression, and then all of this must be memorized for five different songs. Then comes the marching! There are certain ways to walk, specific spots to walk to, spacing that has to be maintained, feet that have to go down at the right time, on the right foot and in the right way, and style of marching that has to be upheld. All of this, both the music and marching, has to be perfectly coordinated together. Now that takes a lot of practice, concentration, skill, and perserverance.

A new addition to the band this year was Mr. Ken Taylor, our new director. Besides working with our band, Mr. Taylor is also the music director at Blackford High. His enthusiastic attitude and extra effort for the band truly make him a welcome member.

This years band practiced their field show every Wednesday starting in late September. For what limited amount of time they had to learn and practice it, they managed to produce a very satisfactory show. At performances they won several awards including high music, and several first places. The band also did very well at the parades they participated in. At the Santa Clara Parade of Champions, they were awarded first place and a check for $500. Throughout the marching season, drum major, Jon Ligget, also won many awards and should be commended for his outstanding performances.

Besides the fall marching, the band also took part in several competitions in the spring, traveling to such exciting places as Tracy, Stockton, and Vallejo. Some of these competitions included not just the usual field competition, but also jazz band, concert, and parade. One of the highlights of the year was the Disneyland trip. The reason for the trip was to participate in a parade through Disneyland, but the band also visited Magic Mountain, Universal Studios, and a game show taping during the time that they were there.

In between all of the practices and work, the band also found lots of time for fun. It's amazing that they didn't all turn into pizzas, considering how much they managed to consume during the year. There were also many a party, movie, and "band sectional", not to mention some pretty tough football games. But all in all, they managed to put on a really good show and have a lot of fun doing it. Congratulations!



Which way do we go?

Color Guard

This year's color guard has made tremendous strides. They went from a total of 3 people at the beginning of the year to a peak of 32 members and averaging about 22 people throughout the year. This was the first year in color guard for most of the members, considering that over 50% of them were freshmen. At the beginning of the year, many of them barely knew what a flag was, and by the end they all had completely mastered the art of wielding it. Besides just doing flag work in the band's field show this year, the color guard also performed a jazz dance. In addition, they competed in a series of color guard competitions seperate from the band during winter.

But all of this didn't come easily. Besides the skill and concentration it took, it also required a lot of practice. As they didn't really have a class this year, practice took on the form of after school efforts. They practiced anywhere from 2 to 5 days a week for 3 hours all year long. Even though the practices were hard and strenuous, they had fun also. "If we achieved nothing else," one member said, "it was new found muscles."

The whole color guard is looking forward to next season and have high hopes for the years to come.

"Don't even!"

Spirit Week '87

With graceful elegance a dirty cleat sends the pigskin soaring into the sky. The opposing side dashes together in uniform motion as a backfielder captures the ball and charges forward. The Homecoming game has begun. Again, it's a time for happiness and a time for sorrow as PHS experiences its last home football game. For Seniors, it is perhaps their last game of high school, their last chance to show their Panther spirit as we score a touchdown or block a field goal attempt. Nevertheless, Homecoming is not merely a football game, but rather a season, not unlike Christmas. It is the time when students unite to support their team by a week of positive competitions. Roles flip-flop as the men of PHS hit the miniskirts and the ladies rush for the yards, as classes compete in powderpuff football and cheerleading. Once more that evasive Panther is sought after, and the halls of our beloved school undergo the decorating ot the four years. Amongst all this commotion, Spirit Week is also a time to reflect upon one's years at PHS...the milestones reached, the dreams made realities, the overall success and failures in one's high school career. So, when looking back on Spirit Week, one shall recall the fun, excitement, and effort put into it. You made Spirit Week work. Here's to you!

Spirit Week came and went with a bang again at Prospect in 1986. The Seniors, with the theme of graveyard, took a commanding lead early in the week and came through to win Spirit Week for their second year in a row with 153 points. The Juniors followed the yellow brick road down to Oz for a second place, earning 85 points. The Sophomores, getting shanghai'ed in the Orient, earned 65 points and third, and the Freshmen sunk in the quicksand of the swamp, getting 48 points. All in all, the whole week was a success; the Panther pride again showed through.

Did you see that? What?! A couple of lopsided guys with makeup just ran by. Gimme a break! Well, it's hard to believe, but it's true. Besides some technical difficulties and tempo problems, these gammer guys were the stars of this year's spirit week once again. They dazzled PHS with their upbeat routines and dashing cheers. The seniors, who are always in rhythm, constructed a pyramid with Mike Kaelin diving off the top. A peppy junior squad added to the excitement. The sophomores and freshmen did well, and besides they have a couple of years to practice. Some of these spirited guys even managed to appear in the local newspaper. To all of the guys who contributed to this year's Powderpuff Cheerleading Squad, you did a great job. Here's to you!

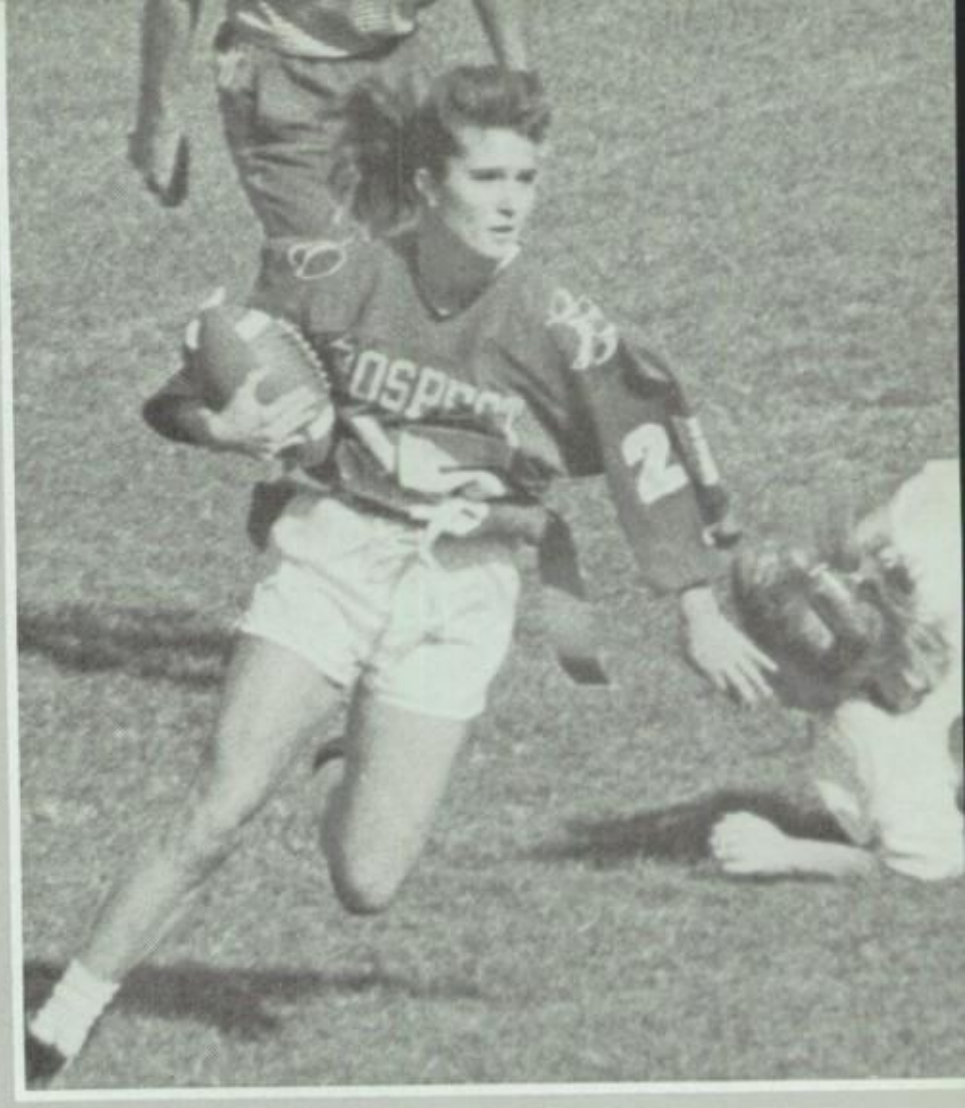
GRRRRRRRRRR!!!

IT'S POWDER-PUFF

Oh boy, FOOTBALL!! The all American sport being played by those blond, blue eyed, California girls? Yes, girls! We call it powder-puff. This spectacular event occurs during Prospect High School's annual spirit week competitions! All of the female sportos get together and, representing their particular graduating class, play an exciting, very different, and sometimes rather vicious game of flag football. For those of you who were too distracted by those sexy Prospect cheerleaders to watch the girls destroy each other, the Seniors won a great battle. Kim Selby played an outrageous game, gaining most of the Senior yardage. While the Juniors tried really hard, it wasn't enough, and they lost. The points for the victory were tallied up for the Seniors, adding to their overwhelming advantage.

"Run the play?? What's a play?"



Kim Selby, once again advancing the ball.

Juniors

The Juniors at Prospect are the "Seniors in training." This class is always associated with style and spirit. With imagination and creativity in their hearts, Juniors always do well during Spirit Week. The class of "88" is truely unique, as is every class that passes through Prospect High. However, this class has its special traits that put them out of the ordinary. One can always get a smile out of any Junior from Prospect. This year's Junior class was a great group of people with awesome personalities and fantastic ideas. The class officers were also great people and some of the best leaders at Prospect. There is no doubt that these Juniors are going to be an outrageous group of Seniors.

The Junior year is probably the most important of the high school years. Academicly, it is the hardest year in high school. This year most Juniors took seven classes. OH NO, all that homework! AAAAAAAH!!! However, the class of "88" always finds the time to do the things it likes to do. There were only twenty-seven students that were not active in any clubs, sports, or academics this year. Out of three hundred and fifty-two Juniors, that's only 13%! Pretty good, eh? Maybe the Junior year isn't as tough as it sounds. Well it's not exactly easy, but we always seem to have plenty of those wild and crazy Seniors.

Cut it out guys, you're embarrassing me!!

Best Friends

Every one has friends. Some friends you only say a quick "hi" to in the hall, other friends you may spend half of your life with. There are very distant friends, close friends, friends you have known forever, and others that you have just met, some you can hardly stand and some you will never forget. But the greatest friends you will ever have are your best friends.

A true best friend will always be there for you, whether you need them or not. The greatest times of your life will be spent with your best friends. Just like on Hallmark Cards and on the Pacific Bell Telephone commercials, you will never lose touch with them, no matter how hard you try.

Everything you do with your best friends will help you to remember them more. Things like getting in trouble for the pillow fight you had that left feathers in the heating vents. Or the time you were seven and got kicked out of the fabric store for playing hide-and-go-seek with ten of your best friends. These are the things that make your best friends special in your minds and make them truely your greatest friends.

How To Sell A Magazine

Every year the junior class is involved in a stupendous fundraiser. This wonderful event provides an exciting way to raise money for the Senior Prom. Not only do you earn money for juniors, but you can also win super prizes for yourself and a pizza party for your class! YEAH!

How do you go about selling a magazine for your junior class? First, attend a meeting where a lady talks to you about how to fill out small pieces of paper called order forms. While you are at the meeting look over the pretty prizes that have been displayed for you at the front of the room. Tell yourself that you are going to sell a whole bunch of magazines and win a portable stereo.

At school you can bribe some freshmen, and maybe two or three sophomores, into buying magazines. When you get home renew three of your own magazines and proceed to con your parents into subscribing to that special bonus magazine. You might also try to get your little sister to order one of those kiddie magazines. If she tells you that she has no money, loan it to her.

After you have turned in the order forms, you will receive a cute little fuzzy creature, a pile of candy, and some point cards with spots on them that say "RUB ME OFF". Scratch off the spots to find the number of points you have earned, then collect your prizes.

Varsity Football is one activity that everyone at Prospect can participate in. Whether your a player on the team or a fan in the stands, football seems to arouse everyone's spirits. While cheering the team on it helps the players to know that their school is supporting them and it gives them strength to go that extra mile.

Prospects Varsity Football team had an impressive group of players this year. These players were dedicated to their team and worked hard at achieving their goals.

Behind every successful team there must be someone to coach them. Behind Prospect's team, this man is Coach Johnson. "Coach" has helped bring Prospect's team up to a very competative level with the other teams in CCS through the last four years and deserves a lot of credit.

Even though this years team went through an emotional season experiencing many ups and downs, they were able to hold their heads up high and go on to the next challenge.

This team deserves a pat on the back for all their efforts and we can be sure to say that each player gave it their all throughout the season to make the team a serious threat in the WVAL league.

Those Boadacious Boys!

Frosh/Soph Football

"Hut! Rrrgg! Get him, get him!" Standing on the sidelines of a Frosh/Soph football game you hear these familiar sounds. Then, when a touch-down is scored, a small hurrah! comes from the small crowd that has gathered to see a great Frosh/Soph team. They have done well this season and have worked hard. Coach Marcos, the team's coach, made the comment that although their practices are discouraging, the team somehow manages to pull together to make a game go over well.

Not many people know of their awesome record this year, and their games do not draw as big of a crowd as the Varsity games do, but they press on, trying their hardest and having fun.

After all is said that can be said, Coach Marcos has just one more thing to say, "(The team is) the best playing team I've ever had."

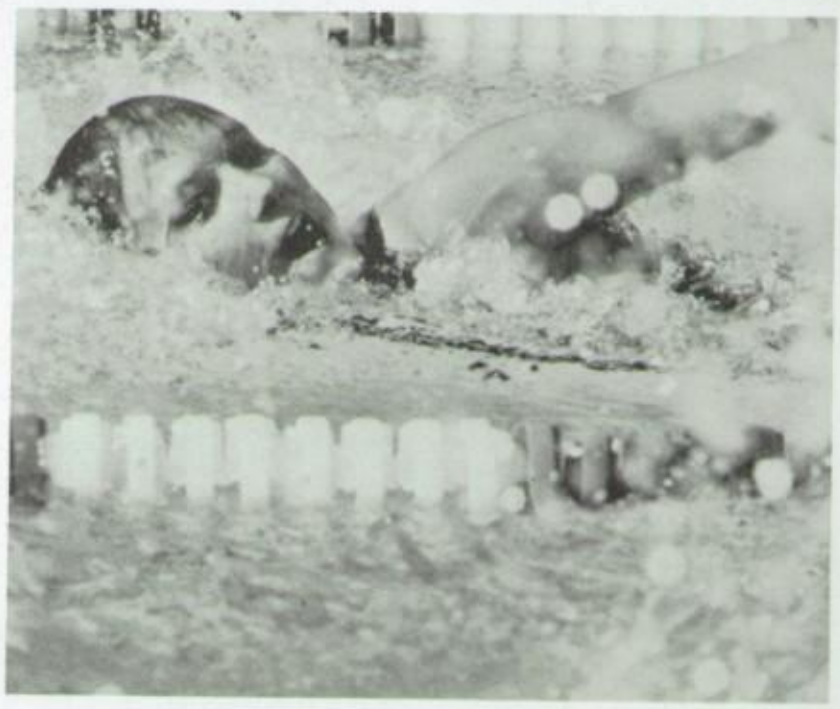
Champions in the West Valley Athletic League for the fifth consecutive year, the girls varsity swimmers still strive for more. Last year they took a record-breaking fourth place in C.C.S. This year they hope to place in the top three. The varsity swim team, this year, is based on quality, unlike last year, which was based on quantity. Quality is what these girls are benefitting from the most. The swimmers, however, are not always able to endure Mrs. Waterman. Sometimes the girls could be heard saying, "Who cares?", "Whatever!", or "Ahhh . . . no!" Practice is not always fun and games because hard work was put forth to achieve their success. Dedication and steadfast motivation is what kept these girls going strong. This maybe the last chance for the girls to rank high in C.C.S., since a majority of the swimmers are seniors. However, there are some exceptional underclassmen talents lurking about. The best of luck to the entire team in years to come.

The Few, The Proud. . .

. . . The JV girls swim team

It was a force to be reckoned with. It was the 1986 JV Girls Swim Team. Once again this bunch of hard working ladies came through and had a successful season. This, however, was not a bowl of cheeries. These girls spent two hours a day practicing. Aside from all this practicing the JV Team acquired several girls with no previous swim experience. Well after many days of trial and error, good days and bad, these determined girls came through and won. Coach Sandy Waterman had a big part in the team's success. Says the coach, "Those girls really came into their own this year." Many of these girls should excel in the next swim season.



Why am I doing this to myself?
Oh my gosh! I'm almost done!
Where am I?
Should I say "cheese"?

Bouncing on the boards again are the girls from the Prospect Diving team. Not only did all the Varsity team members make it to CCS; Sheri Nakamitsu, Laura Wellington, Rori McGill, we had the top JV diver; Trisha Clark. These girls are very dedicated but they do allow for some fun. Occasionally you can see the DIVERS doing flip turns or synchronized swimming. One of the goals for this years team was to see how long it took the girls to get into that cold water. The girls can also be seen dunking from flying golf balls that Kevin Delaney, the coach, bounced in between dives. But let us not forget the other people that have to dive through this, Mindy Stevens and Tina Torres. Many people think this one of the best teams the school has ever had.

The 1986 Varsity Field Hockey team has been the most successful in many years. The girls on the team have really worked together and shown team spirit on the field. Every member of the team has put 100% of their effort and determination into the season. We came into the season with the eagerness to win and go to CCS and that's what made us so successful. Coach Sue Hunt especially wanted a victory and has shown us with her enthusiasm at game time. There was a close relationship between Miss Hunt and the players. "Kristen, go in for Menefee-or is that Parker?"

As well as winning, the team has had a great deal of fun. The spirit came out at a rally when the team performed a cheer to the Prospect fight song. EAT YOUR HEARTS OUT, RAH RAHS, the Prospect Hockey Team takes over.

This years captains, Nancy Talbot and Wendy Crain have definitely gone for the win since the beginning of the season. The whole team gets along quite well and that has helped us work together. The seniors are going to miss the team a lot! We're the greatest. And good luck next year, Sue!

Michelle Dodd on the run . . . You know she'll get it!

Nancy Talbot aims for the shins, but gets it in the face!

Shooting For Victory

J.V. Field Hockey

Led by Coach Larry Schembri, the 1986 girls JV Hockey Team was one of the best in Prospect's history. They practiced two hours a day, sometimes in the rain ("Hey, it's more fun that way") because "hockey is so much fun!" While listening to Coach Schembri's words of wisdom, the girls always paid attention and never watched football players (Right, Lisa, Leah, and Karen?) JC (Karen Crain) loved to take free hits, Hackman (Debby Smith) loved to give people bruises, and Karen Penning loved breaking her stick, and Jen Evans, try not to kill coach with the ball next time! Prospect fans would like to thank the JV team for making this season so memorable.

Cross Country

This year's Cross Country team at Prospect showed great strides! Even though most of the members were first-timers to the team, their practices proved that they didn't want to be known as such. Coach Smith worked the cross countrians till they themselves noticed their improvement. There were quite a few dynamic exhibitionists on the team that really deserve recognition. Kut Tran, a freshman, was able to compete at varsity times, an exceptional effort for a newcomer. Cheryl Sano, a junior of the varsity girls' team, competed with record times of previous PHS girls, becoming a dominant CCS hopeful. Other excellent performances were shown by David Avery, Craig Jung, and Minh Lu, making our team diverse and strong in '86.

The 1986 Varsity Volleyball Team was definitely a smashing success. The only seniors on the team, Gina Bowen and Colleen Shannon, shared the role of team captain. (Gina led the two in winning coin tosses, but Colleen made a strong comeback in the end.) To have an underclassman on a Varsity team is unusual, but Freshman Janelle Yamasaki proved that it was possible. Janelle led the team in spikes, and her all-around excellent play led her to a starting position. Varsity Volleyball plays 3 out of 5 games, but the team this year forgot. The team's winning record was well deserved when each game they won went to 4 or 5 games. Most of the team this year was made up of juniors, and with their experience, next season you Volleyballers from Prospect (stomp clap) WIN!!!

So Sheik!

Halt!

This year's Junior Varsity Volleyball team strives to reach new heights as they jump higher, stretch farther, and try harder than ever before. The team has overcome their shortage of tall players by bumping and setting even better.

They have taken in a number of new freshmen and combined them with a majority of returning sophomores and juniors to make a very competitive team. The team members say that this balance of new and experienced players is one of their best assets.

Here's to you girls!

Is It Love?

Girls Tennis

It has been a growing year for the girls tennis team. Stacey Dudek, our number one singles player, is the accomplished veteran of our team; this is her fourth year out. Number two singles, rookie Lesly Haranaga, has been quoted as saying "This has been a challenging year." Mimie Yoon, our most spirited member, and Kristi Purdue were ranked at three and four. Our doubles were a very big asset to our team. Kathy Kim and Heather Chew wrwere working together at number one. Randi Fugimoto, Amy Ha, Stephanie Wright and Shelley Serrano were productively rallying two and three. Other players to recognize are: Liz Lambourne, Jodie Bernstein, Cheryl Barnes, Julie Philp, Jean Herriges, and Christine Kim. These girls not only are part of the team, but they are there for the experience and to lend their support. If you were to watch one of our matches you would hear:

"Is my form better now?" -Kathy Kim

"There goes another one to Mars!" -Lesly Haranaga

"Girls, get away from the drinking fountain!" -Coach Dudock and the most famous two . . .

"Shut up, Lesly!" -Mimie Yoon and Stacey Dudek

"Mimie, Shut up!" -Stacey Dudek and Lesly Haranaga

Our team is tough and we're looking forward to a strong team next year.

The 1986-87 Girls Soccer Team has really been successful. After defeating Mitty by a score of 4 to 1, Prospect went ahead and took second in league. The team won its first game in CCS which meant the girls must face the # 1 ranked team, Leland. To much surprise they met victory again! This was the first time in many years that Prospect has gotten to the semi-finals in CCS. They ended the soccer season with a third place honor in CCS and a feeling of accomplishment for a great season and a greatly wanted win over Mitty. Good work, girls!

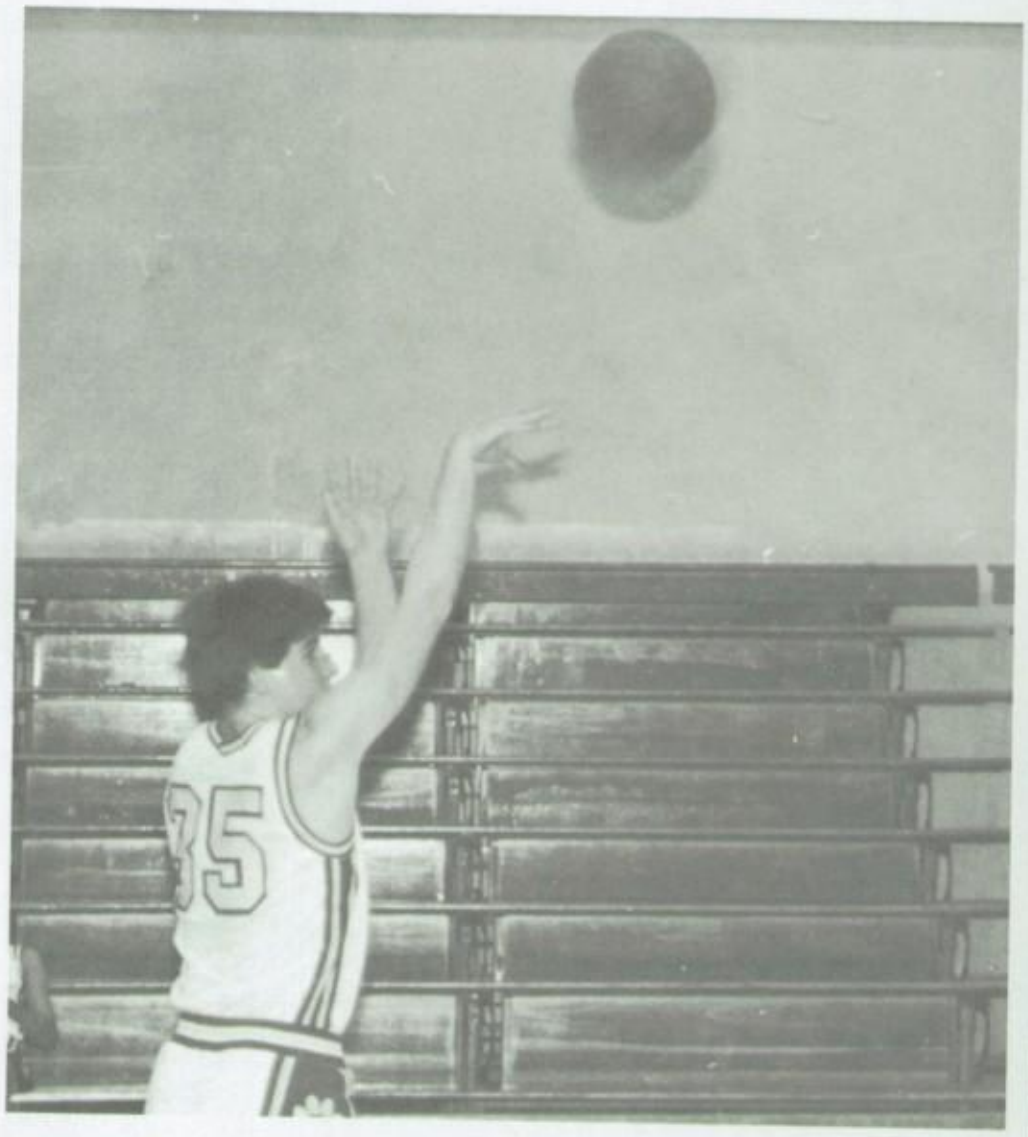
The Declaration
Boy's Varsity Basketball in '87...



We the students of Prospect High School are endowed by our district with certain inalienable rights — and among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of having a Boy's Varsity Basketball Team. This past season twelve talented individuals lived up to the expectations of the student body. The team, coached by Ed Marcos, had to overcome many obstacles in order to do this. Each player had to fufill his own obligations to the team to become the strong, well refined team that it was. Raw experience was very abundant this year with the addition of two sophomores, Erik Johnson and Brian Steinbach, but they learned fast and both of them had great seasons. Many of last year's juniors became even better as seniors. Players such as Rick Lau, Dean Witkin, and Rob Wojtkowski played a large role in the team's success in 1986-1987. With so much talent next year can be nothing but better. Unfortunately, the Basketball Team can't attain victory alone, so remember to go to the games and cheer Prospect on to victory.

Members include: Rob Wojtkowski, Jeff Grillo, Rick Lau, Dean Witkin, Erik Johnson, Ken Wong, Jeremy Karpel, Craig Hiraki, Kevin Phillips, Alan Cochran, Louis Cochran, and Brian Steinbach

Giving It Their Best Shot

Girls Varsity Basketball

This years Varsity Girls Basketball team can really be remembered as giving it their best shot! Although the team was a young one, improvements were noticed at every game. The team was only graced by two Seniors this year, the rest made up of lower classmen, who will undoubtably carry success for next years team. Some outstanding performances were shown by Mindy Wright and Chimene Hickey, both of whom fought it out on the courts for those "never gonna make it shots". Also, freshmen Janelle Yamasaki captivated the crowds with her expertise in dominating the basketball courts. Tye Ferdinandsen, the new coach for the team this year, gave strong coaching to the girls, thus enabling them to carry out the use of very strong rebounding. All in all, this years Varsity team did an extraordinary job, and this is really seen in the way that they work so well together. So here's to the Varsity Girls Basketball team of 1986-1987. Remember that sometimes giving it your best shot isn't quite so bad!

On The Rebound

Boys Junior Varsity Basketball

On a roll . . . this year's Boys Junior Varsity Basketball team has had a very successful season. They played consistently well during the whole season, managing successful wins against many very tough competitors. The team was made up of a majority of sophomores, with a few incoming freshmen. Although there were several outstanding team members, each member played hard and with much enthusiasm. Under the coaching of Lee Shimoto, this energetic group of boys was characterized for their determination, aggressiveness, and discipline. The boys practiced long and hard for several hours everyday after school, with emphasis on the fundamentals of the game. In addition, this dedicated team practiced occassionally during the weekends and during Christmas vacation. All in all, the whole team worked toward victory and the result was a winning season.

This One's For Iggy

Girls' JV B-Ball does it again. . .

The Girls' JV Basketball team this year was very successful as returning players and talented freshmen led to a winning season. At the beginning players complained about the long practices, but as the season progressed, their hard work showed up as points on the scoreboard. The team's top scorer was Suzie Regul, but much of her success can be attributed to the skilled assists of Marlene Hirose and Tina Enslow. With the experience and encouragement of Coach Iggy, this JV team led the Panthers to another great year. Foreign exchange student, Nicola Disko, with her height and ability, was a great asset to the team. Congratulations on a great season, Girls' JV B-Ball!

Members include: Tina Enslow, Terri Rodriguez, Marlene Hirose, Lisa Wojtkowski, Diana Quan, Amy Hackleman, Nicola Disko, Randi Fujimoto, Lesly Haranaga, Michelle Wilder, Stephanie Wright, Coach Ingrid Schumacher, Suzie Regul, Terri Gilliland

Kick In The Grass . . .

Young and promising are two words to describe the guys of this years soccer team. With only five seniors and a total of nine returning players, the team of twenty had to work hard together to become the best they could be.

Running liners, practicing drills, and more running was just part of what they spent hours doing after school. These guys had a good first half, where they were in third place. To add, Coach O'Mally stated that the team had a fighting chance to get to C.C.S..

Greg Beedy, the team's assistant coach, dedicated much of his time this year. With his support, coaching and usual sayings: "C'mon guys", the guys improved more and more each game. This team has a lot of potential and determination to be the best. Good luck in the future.

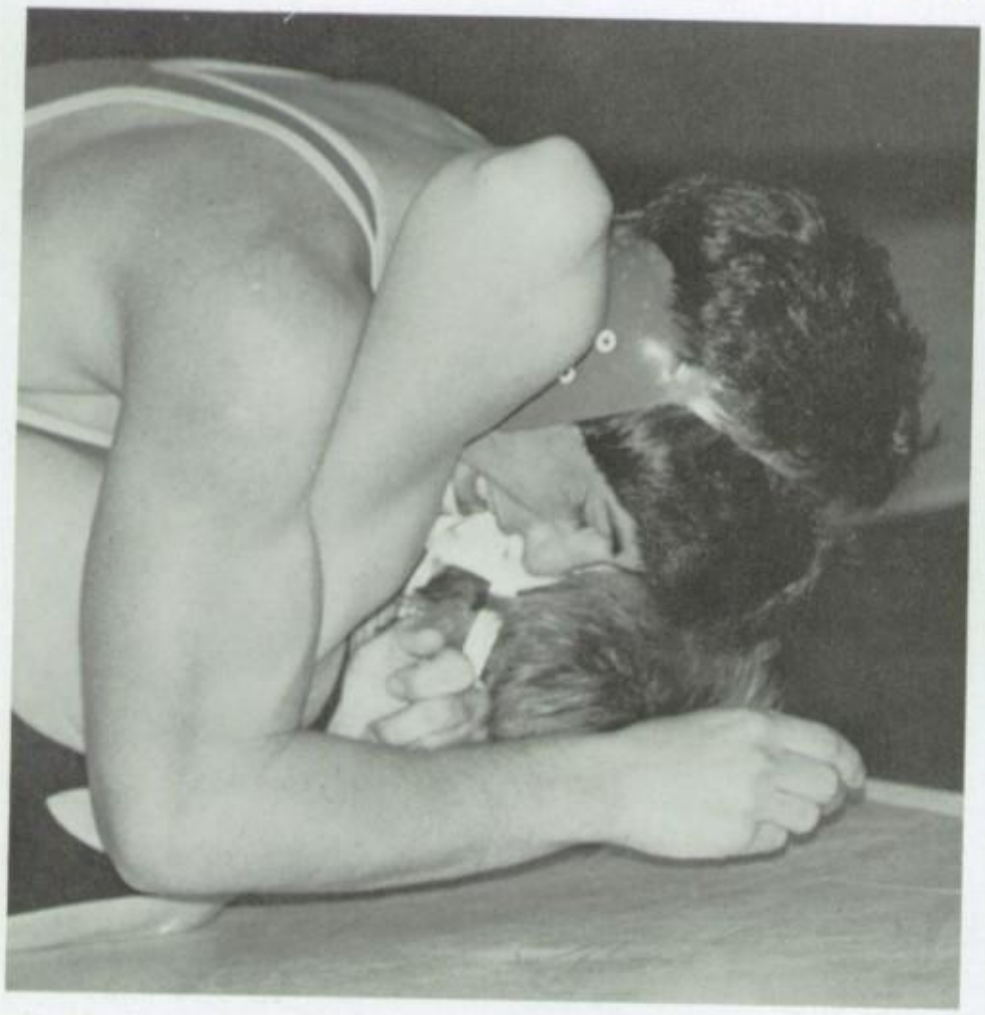
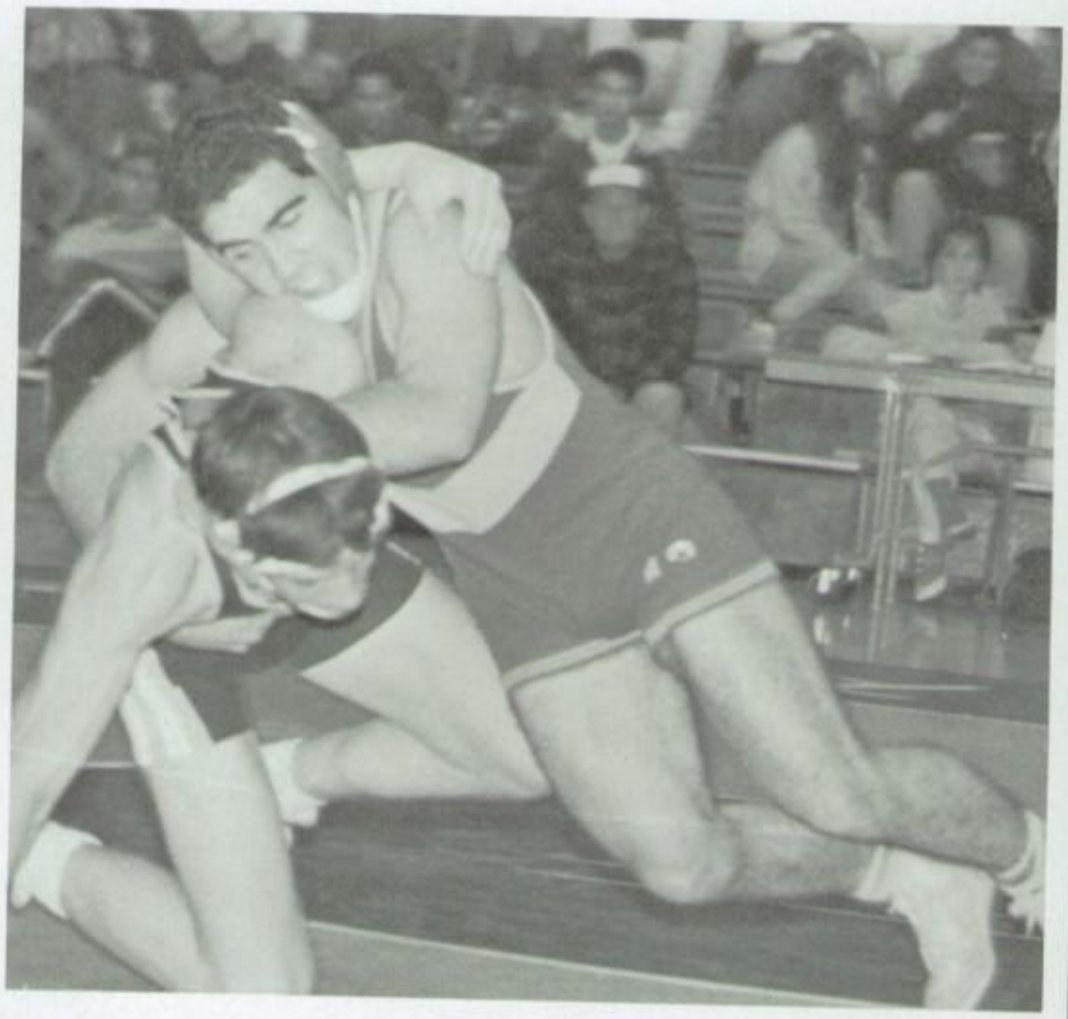
Wrestlers Takedown!

Varsity Wrestling





The 1986-87 Varsity wrestlers started off with the ever-popular problem of inexperience. The panther team worked diligently at practices to gain the necessary strength and quickness, and one of the most important aspects, balance. There was never any assurance of their positions in their weight divisions because of weekly challenge matches. Coached by Mr. Machado, and assisted by Gene Nanez, the wrestlers learned to overcome their problem through hard work and concentration. Hopefully, there will be many returning players next year to further their abilities and to keep one of the most physical sports charging on.

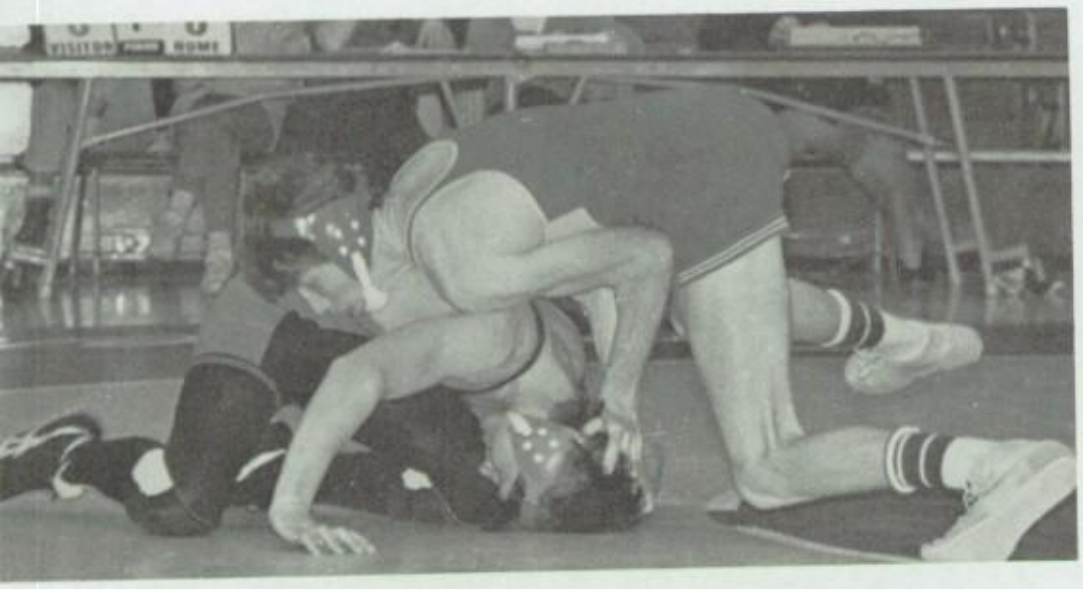
Those boys hit the mat



This year's Junior Varsity Wrestling team was coached by former member Gene Nanez, with the overall guidance from Mr. Machado. The team did well this year with help from returning members, as well as with the enthusiasm from new recruits. Although the practice was hard, it obviously paid off as the teams' matches inevitably ended in wins. All summed up, the JV wrestling team of '87 was a big success.

Sluggers Take The Field!

Eric Johnson homers it over the fence to give Prospect the lead!

Prospect's J.V. Baseball team is full of great players. These up-and-coming guys are the foundation for the varsity's success. You wouldn't think that baseball is very difficult; they probably don't even practice. Sorry to disappoint you, but these hardworking sluggers are on the field sweating long after most of us have gone home. It is a real commitment to be on the team. With the great help of Coach Lee Shimoto, these guys are on their way to a winning season.

Girl's Softball

The varsity girls softball team started out their season with 2 wins and 0 losses. Prospect is a well known team when it comes down to CCS playoffs. These girls have the talent this year to win it all. Varsity members include: Kim Ford, Shelley Serrano, Kim Selby, Stacey Colbert, Nancy Talbot, Wendy Crain, Susie Wall, Shirley Long, Debbie Smith, Yolene Wilson, Karen Crain, Becky Yard, Jenny Contreras, and Kelly Stanton. The varsity coach is Mr. Crain.

The reserve team has a very short season because they only play preseason games. Nevertheless, the players had fun and got good experience to play on the varsity next year. The players are: Terri Rodreguez, Karen Roller, Kendra Kissane, Katrina Kidd, Jennifer Bernall, Windi Goodale, Jenny Meyers, Becky Yard, Karen Crain, Satomi Otaki, Karen Penning, Lisa Wojtkowski, Yolene Wilson, and Monina Johnson. The coaches were Mrs. Crain and Lisa Levine.

Boys Tennis

"We started out bad but I think we should finish up the season pretty good. We might have a shot at being 2nd in the league." this according to Senior Jim Cramer. And they might just accomplish that goal too. The number one tennis single, John Yakamamoto, is being called the second best player in the league. Also, the best doubles, Jim Cramer and Ricky Lau, are giving their best shot also. Coach Dudock had no comment. Good Luck Guys !

The Big Boys Get Mean

You want big, we got big; you want bad, we got badder than bad. In fact we have ten meaner guys than you want to mess with. Yes I'm talking about the Prospect Varsity Boys' Swim Team. How did we get so mean? Well I will tell you. It's because of the type of athletes they are, the types of athletes who like to win. They give 101 percent everytime they get into the water. With the loss of a lot of top seniors, they are going to try even harder this year. Usually you can do much with only ten swimmers, but with the likes of Dominic Aitken in the 200 Individual Medley, Dave Jordan in the 200 and 500 Free, and Dave Meck who is good at just about everything, you can pull off alot of miracles. Freshman Scott Randall is one of those miracles. He is already almost assured of going to C.C.S. Sophomore Dave Carlsen has contributed a couple of miracles in the 100 Breast. But who is the guy behind the scenes, the guy who is out on the pool deck everyday to make sure the boys are doing the best they can? Why it is no other than Coach (Hot Rod) Carlsen. It is because of his perseverence that the team is as good as it is. So make sure and see them when they get really mean and clean-up house!

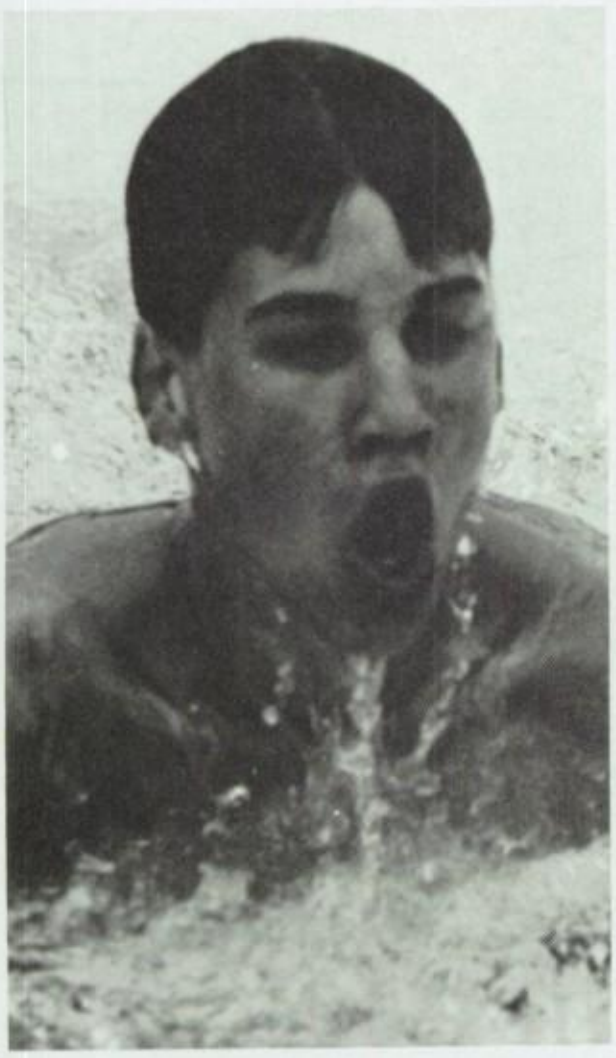
The Big Boys In Training



Now that you know what our Varsity Boys' Team is like, take a look at the way they get so big and bad. It is the Junior Varsity Boys' Swim Team. Like their "big brothers" they have a small squad of eleven boys, but they still put 101 percent into their swimming like nobody's business. And they are good at it too. Last year they only lost one dual swim meet, and this year they have a good chance of a repeat performance. They know that they are small and most people would rather watch the Varsity Team, but they do not care. As long as they keep on their winning tracks, that is all they need. Most of the squad is returning from last year, so experience is on their side. Jeff "Stroke" Jordan, Mike Graham, Dave Brenner, Aaron Luallen, Fred "Mouth" Voltmer, and Matt "The Champ" Phillips head this year's team. They also have four new freshmen this year who really know their stuff. They have alot of fun not only swimming, but also sharing some special moments together talking about beefcake and other aspects of life. There to share these special moments is the notorious Rod Carlson who helps them become polished swimmers. Now you know where the talent of the Varsity Team comes from.

Bombs Away!

This year's Boys' Diving Team exploded. Ten daring men made up the team. There was alot of experience, but also alot of new men this year. Divers Mike Wooley and Jason Scharpf are the leaders of the Varsity Team, which despite the loss of last year's Ed Chan, are doing a spectacular job. The Junior Varsity Team is not lacking in talent either. Doug Weins, Jose Castellon, as well as freshman sensation, Chris Johnson, lead the JV forces. What is missing in experience, both teams have in depth. The mastermind behind the Prospect Divers, is the well publicized Kevin Delaney. Besides refining old dives, Kevin is incorporating new dives into the divers' programs. Because of the tremendous size of the team, he is also conditioning some boys for swimming events. Thom Swanson and Jason Woodbury are two free-stylers that have shown much promise. But above all of those Painstaking hours out on the pool deck, laying out waiting for Kevin to show up, there is something unique about this elite bunch of athletes. And that is their dedication to reach deep down to get that perfect score.

The 1987 Prospect Badminton team began the season with a scare. They had no coach. But Ingrid Schumaker volunteered for the job, and was aided by Sylvia Seroff and Lauren Alaimo, former Prospect Varsity players. The team had no preseason games, but they spent the time doing extra hitting drills. This talented team is comprised of half returning players and half new players. After doing hitting drills and running for two and a-half hours every day, the team was ready to face anyone. Anyone who says that badminton is a wimpy sport should try playing one of these talented individuals. Just one warning- keep your eye on the birdie!

Sprinting Ahead Of The Pack

Boys Junior Varsity Track

Picture this . . . a group of boys with worn-out athletic shoes, smelly feet an shin splints. Doesn't sound too attractive, huh?!? Well, tell that to the Bo Junior Varsity Track team. Although this group of boys went through all of th above and more, it was their steadfast dedication that kept them going. Th team was made up of mostly sophomores with a few incoming freshme Although most of them were rather new and inexperienced, they made u for that through their enthusiasm and hunger for victory. Under the guidanc of Coach Orlando, the boys spent several hours afterschool everyday prac ticing and preparing for upcoming meets. The practices sometimes got lon and strenuous, but the team pushed themselves to do their best and t improve their times and distances at each track meet. Although team mem bers competed in several individual events, they all worked together and fo the team as a whole. These boys may have lacked competitive experience but the greatest award for their fine teamwork and dedication was th feeling that they got from knowing that they had gone out there and put ou their best effort on the track and field. With a little more practice an experience, they'll be a team to watch in the near future.

Getting Back On Track At PHS!

Imagine if you can, a warm day after school. The sun is beating down on the foreheads of many students, all of whom are pounding the track with their feet, struggling to get to the next pole before the dreaded whistle of their coach rings to their ears. This is an ordinary day in the life of a Prospect track athlete! Blisters, pulled muscles and headaches are just some of the obstacles that they must face, and although it was sometimes hard for them to run that extra 440, or jump those extra few feet, they did. When their coaches persisted in telling them that those extra laps or feet would pay off, it was sometimes hard for the track team to believe them, but know they know that their coaches were right, and it was those "extra" things that made them the winners that they turned into. Whether it was head coach Larry Orlando drilling the sprinters or the relay teams, or Coach Petty lifting the hurdlers and jumpers to victory is not of vital importance. Maybe it was Coach Johnson who coaxed the shot put and discuss team to win the meets. Or perhaps it was Coach Smith who threatened the distance runners to give it all they had to gain the winning points at the meets. Whatever it was, the 1986-1987 Varsity Track team did an outstanding job, and that is what I call, "Getting Back on Track!"

Buck!

Girls' Track And Field

Girls' Track, the first image that springs in most people's minds is a bunch of girls running around a track for pleasure. In actuality it is much more. First, there are the field events, long jump, high jump, triple jump, shotput, and discus. The running events include the 100 yrd. dash, the 100 yrd. hurdle race, the 330 yrd. dash, the 220 yrd. dash, the 440 yrd. dash, the 880 yrd. race, the one and two mile races, and the 440 yrd. relay race. The head coach and the coach of the sprinters is Coach Orlando. The distance coach is Coach Smith. Coach Petty coaches long jum, high jump, and triple jump, while Coach Johnson coaches (you guessed it) shot put and discus. With many experienced girls that have returned and new talent this year's girls' track and field team did better than ever this year.

Wise Fools

Translated from the dictionary, sophomores means "wise fools". The Sophomores themselves might think this is so but it could be questionable in the minds of others.

In their second year of high school Sophomores really begin to mature quickly. They're no longer being tainted as "Freshman". What two more exciting classes could they ask for than Biology and Driver's Education.

Mr. Granger and Mr. Arnerich find so many constructive activities for their dear Sophomores. Like the very appetizing frog dissection lab. Or how about trying to open up an egg without tearing the membrane just inside the shell. They know that once they tear that membrane or rip any part of the growing chicken embryo, that they've lost their only chance at that lab.

Then comes the ultimate test of how much you can take at being laughed at; DRIVER'S EDUCATION. Hitting parked cars and giving passengers whiplash seem to be the most memorable time of a Sophomores year. But flipping the car over speed bumps and scaring the Freshman who walk home with the cars seems bearable to achieve that final goal of getting their driver's licsense.

All in all, Sophomores do grow wiser, maybe, as the year progresses. They've gained more confidence since their Freshman year and are more encouraged to get involved with school activities. Go for it!

"She is so shy!"

The telephone. Where would we be without our telephone? Some of us spend so much time on the phone that our phone bill is higher than our electric bill. Dependence on the phone has become an addicting habit that some try hard to break. The first signs of phonoflu is inability to write ones name with a pen. Another syntom is reddish sores on the dialing finger. Dialers anonymus has been set up in select cities and their number is we-dial4u.

Have you ever been in some-one elses house and answered their calls or, can you play centain songs on push button phones? Or can you pick up the receiver with your toes? If you answered yes to even one of these you need Dialers Anonymus.

Wait! Oh my gosh! there's the phone! I have got to go get it! No! I will not! Will power, my girl, will power! But I have been so good today! Maybe I'll just say hello. That would not hurt. I swear I'll just hang up right away. I won't even talk. O.K., here I go! Hello? . . . Meanwhile two hours later . . .

Which Do You Prefer A Serious Survey

Crunchy or creamy peanut butter? These questions and more were asked in a poll of students. This question though seemed to be the one people were most concerned with. Here are their responses.

Diana Quan- "Crunchy . . . it's more fun."
Beth Varozza- "Crunchy . . . the peanuts go along with the lumps in the jelly." Connie Buchanan- "Crunchy . . . I like the texture."
Rori Mc Gill- "Crunchy . . . more food in it."
Glen Cureton- "Crunchy . . . It has substance." This is getting redundant
Erica Nilsson- "Crunchy" . . . ?
Robyn Glover- "Crunchy . . . well, I like to crunch the nuts and I like the way the nuts ooze between my teeth."
Fred Voltmer- "I hate peanut butter!"
Brad Hall- "Crunchy . . . why not?"
Well guys! That is the way our survey turned out; and I would just like to say for those of you who don't like crunchy peanut butter-you had better have a better reason for disliking it than for liking creamy. Some of these people were very shocked that there was even a choice. I'll bet if they had their way there would not be any Creamy at all.

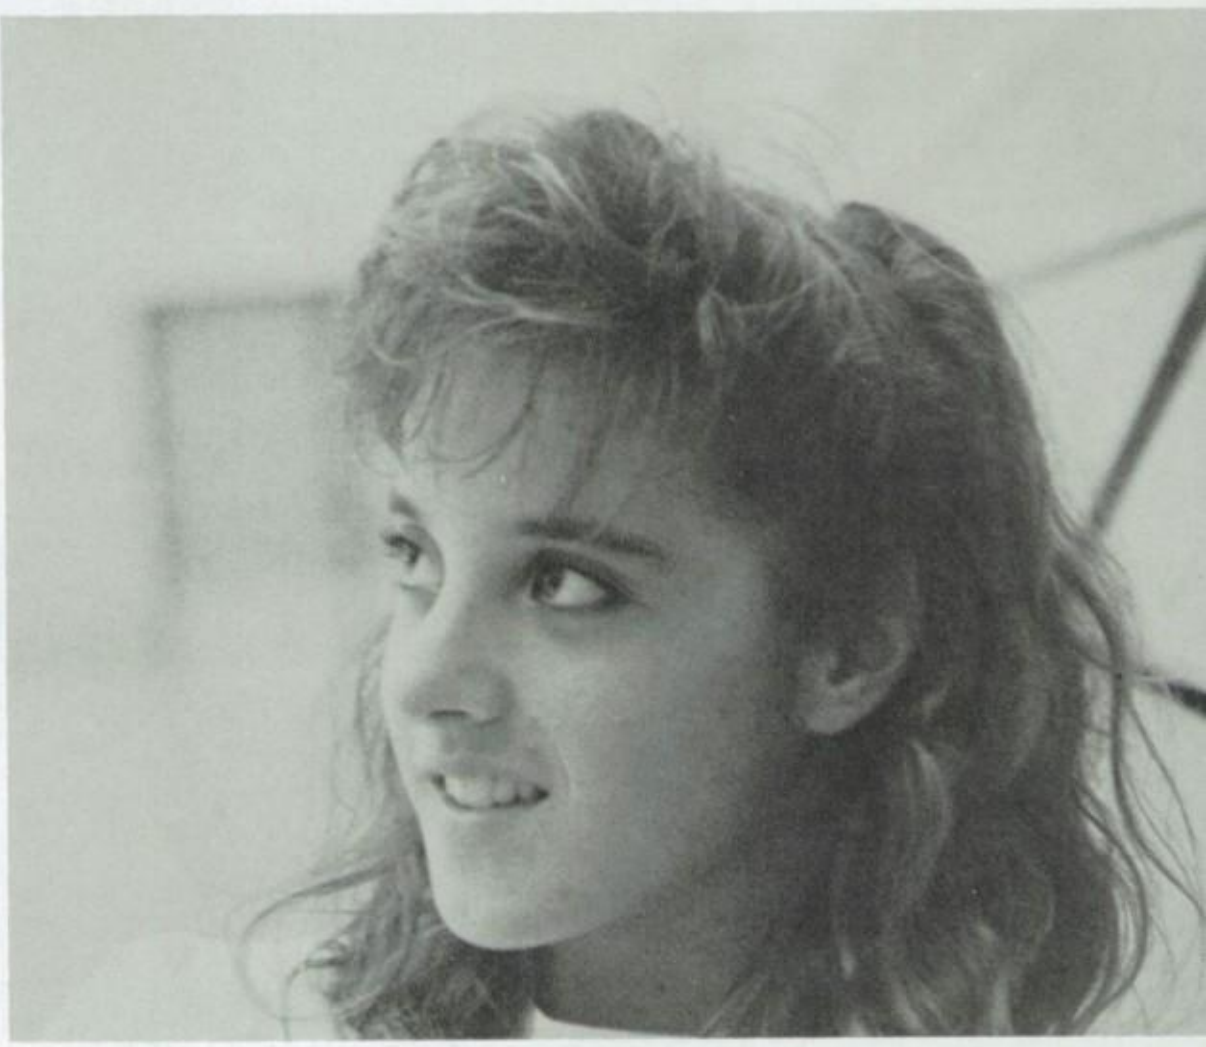
I'm A Ninth Grader Not A Freshman!

Picture this: While standing in the Quad one bright sunny day, you feel a sudden gush of wind at your side. When you turn, you notice a solitary figure being pursued by a group of savage Seniors. Your curiosity aroused, you follow. The Seniors catch up the figure, grab him, and tape him to a pole.

Because they have to be aware of Seniors bearing tape, weary Freshman (like the one you've just seen), when asked, by a Senior, the year they are in, proclaim, "I'm a 9th grader!!!" They hope that perhaps the Senior will hesitate before realizing that Freshman and 9th grader are equivalent. This could give them a chance to flee. Aside from this and the neverending proclamation of "Freshman!!!" by the Sophomores and upper classman, the Freshman year can be rewarding. It's a time to discover new friendships, become familiar with the "new" school and for each Freshman to find his own "place" within the student body of Prospect. During the school year, the Freshman constantly grow and learn. They prepare themselves for the coming years at Prospect. For many, however, this growing time is difficult and seems unbearable. But if you're that Freshman who is having a rough year, don't worry you'll survive, those before you did!! And if you're presently being taped to a pole, just remember that the guy taping you may have been the victim when he was a Freshman!

Now . . . what page was that???

These are worth 35¢?



Who's that???

Our First Rally!!!

Before the rally-
"Do you think I should bring my books to the rally?"
"No, leave them in your locker!"
"What if I don't have time later to go to my locker?"
"Don't worry you'll have time. Besides, do you want to look like a Freshman?"
"But, we are!"
Just put your books in the locker and let's go!"
In the gym before the rally-
"Where do we sit?"
"We sit . . . over there under the FRESHMAN sign!"
"I don't want to sit there!"
"Me either, but I think we have to. This is humiliating!"
Before the yelling contest-
"What are we suppose to do?"
"I think we're suppose to yell!"
"I'm not yelling!"
"Neither am I! That's like saying that I'm proud to be a Freshman and I'm not!"
After the rally-
"I can't believe no one yelled!"
"I know! It was embarrassing when Mr. Macdermott said to go and all the Freshman remained silent!"
"Yah, but let's look on the bright side . . ."
"What bright side?"
"At least we know what to expect next time!"

She's Taller Than Me!!!

Have any of you guys ever felt small, a little inferior (in stature that is) somewhat . . . shall we say . . . short? If you have, the chances are you've been a Freshman. Many Freshman guys are plagued with the dreaded disease of "shortness." What is worse, however, is that the girl they like is usually taller than them (sound familiar?) and this can be quite embarrassing. They find that when they finally start dating that "special girl," many people make remarks about the height difference like "Hey, how's the Amazon woman you're dating?" or "Has she noticed your dandruff yet?" Sometimes, these remarks are difficult to bear, but most Freshman guys survive the wise cracks until they grow. Until that time, however, to help you Freshman guys out, here are a few tips (ALL IN GOOD HUMOR OF COURSE!) to help you eleviate the height difference (or at least the embarrassment.) when you're on a date with that "dream girl."

1. Stand on your tippy toes.
2. Tell her to sit down.
3. Put risers in your shoes.
4. Make her get down on her knees.
5. Bring a ladder.
6. Stand on a stool.
7. Saw off her legs.
8. Bring stilts.
9. Put yourself on a rack and stretch yourself.
10. If she teases you about your height, jump up and bite her on the knee caps.

You look marvelous!!!!

Reflections on '87. The friendships, the laughs, the good times: this was our year at PHS.

For some of us, this was our last year at our beloved high school. Now is the time for us to go out into the world and apply things we've learned here to make our dreams reality. Some of us are headed for universities and higher institutions of learning while others plan to enter the adult work force or to travel the world. Any way, the culmination of our experiences at Prospect has prepared us for our futures.

Still others will remain here at PHS to continue on their journey of maturing and growth through high school. Time will shape their characters as self-confidence, responsibility, and direction will sharpen in each individual, and eventually each person will acquire the capabilities to control their own destinies.

Also, other members of Prospect will also return for another year. These people, although important, are often forgotten: the faculty. Our teachers, administrators, cafeteria staff, maintenance staff, and counselors will again continue in their endeavors to educate the Prospect student body. Of course they will miss those of us who are leaving, yet they have learned that everyone must move on. As they look forward to the break from class, they will still return with the goal of making each PHS student a more complete, rounded individual.

So this was our year. The fun we've had has made memories that will last a lifetime, and the things we've learned will help us in our goals of success. One thing's for sure-no one will leave PHS the same as he came for his experiences here have left an impression that will last a lifetime. To the members of PHS-HERE'S TO YOU!

Where the sidewalk ends

There is a place where the sidewalk
ends
And before the street begins,
And there the grass grows soft and white,
And there the moon-bird rests from his flight
To cool in the peppermint wind.

Let us leave this place where the smoke blows black
And the dark street winds and bends.
Past the pits where the asphalt flowers grow
We shall walk with a walk that is measured and slow,
And watch where the chalk-white
arrows go
To the place where the sidewalk
ends.

Yes we'll walk with a walk that is
measured and slow,
And we'll go where the chalk-white
arrows go,
For the children, they mark, and the children, they know
The place where the sidewalk ends

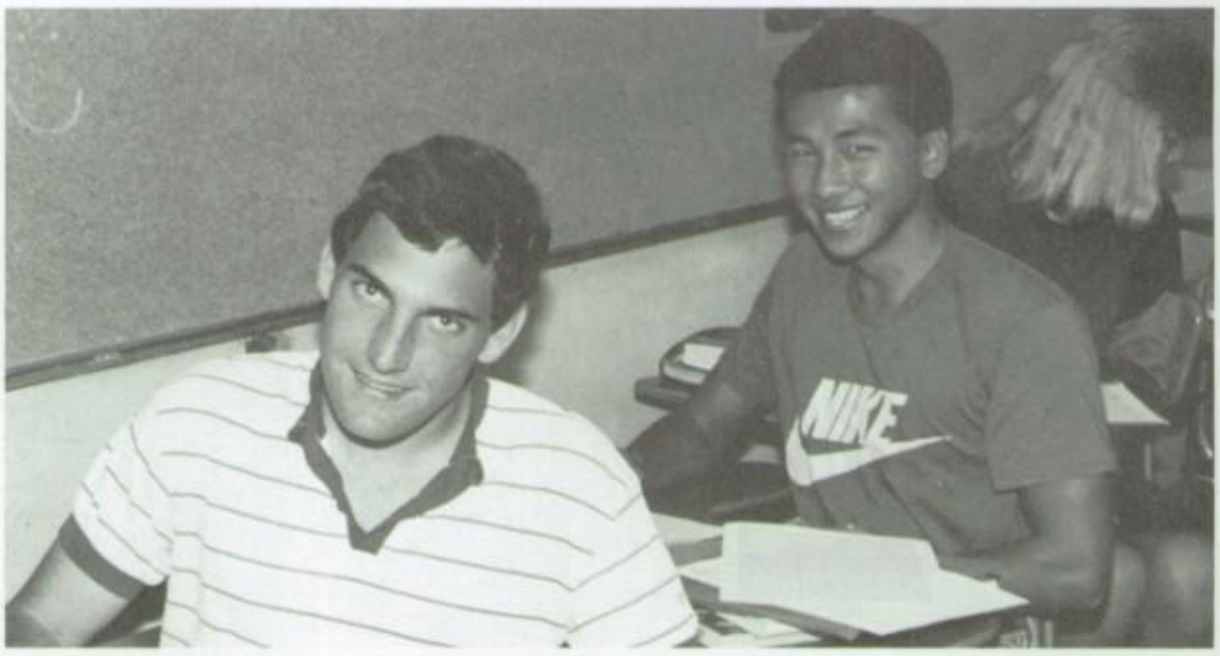
As we take time to reflect on our year, let us remember all the good memories, hard times, special friends and cherished moments that we have all shared together. May we learn from our mistakes and our experiences here at Prospect, and retain that knowledge for it will be useful in later aspects of our lives. We must look ahead because the future holds so much for us, all we have to do is find it, go after it, and conquer it.



Seniors, as you leave, be aware that you are taking with you all you have learned from your experiences here as you embark on your trip through life. Prospect has prepared you well for this very important trip, so live it to it's fullest potential.

For those of you who remain in this protective shelter, keep your eyes open, listen carefully and be sure to get the most out of high school because it is a vital element in preparing you for life.

High school teaches us so many things; it is where we build strong friendships, define our character, mature, and it is the foundation for what we are to become. Never forget these times because this is where it all began.
